WITH BRITISH ARMORED FORCES IN EGYPT, Nov. 5—The breach in axis defenses in the western desert which forced the Germans and Italians to beat a retreat was achieved by a constant pounding of the enemy line with American-made tanks and artillery batteries.

The merciless bombardment with shells and the relentless armored assaults were augmented by heavy blows from ever-present U. S. Army and Royal Air Force bombers and fighters.

The crisis for Nazi General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces was brought about by a steady widening of the bulge driven into axis defenses Monday.

Gap Opened
As the Eighth Army infantry smashed into the gap opened through Rommel's mine fields a steady stream of axis prisoners began pouring back through the allied lines.

Long columns of dazed and dejected Germans and Italians, who had been told that they were fighting a "broken British army" and "the whipped fragment of an air force," plodded toward prison camps in amazement.

This correspondent has completely inspected the whole northern sector where 99 percent of the action was fought and can report that he never has seen so much material, guns, tanks and manpower in the desert before. This sight added to the dejection of the prisoners as they were marched to the rear past the most formidable array of fighting strength.

Planes Attack

While infantry and armored forces stretched the enemy lines hour after hour as though they were elastic a steady stream of U. S. A. F., and RAF medium bombers attacked the transport coastal road between the El Alamein front line and El Daba to the west.

A concentration of Boston, Mitchells, Baltimores, Marylands, Hurricanes and Kittyhawk bombers and fighters assailed axis transports without let-up. The movement of the axis transport columns suggested that Rommel, finally realizing how precarious his position was at the northern end of the line, attempted to move out his vulnerable "thinskinned" vehicles while he was still able to hold off the strong British forces which could decimate them as soon as his main armor was penetrated.

There was heavy uninterrupted fighting between infantry, artillery and tank forces on the whole northern half of the battlefield.

Democrats Lose Hold On Congress

Heavy Republican Gains
Throw Control Into Hands
Of Conservatives

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—Although Democrats still hold majorities in both branches, it appeared today that the heavy GOP gains scored in Tuesday's elections have thrown control of the 78th Congress to conservatives.

Although some contests remain in doubt this much seemed certain:

1. With the Republican ranks in the senate increased from 29 to 38, only a dozen conservative Democrats will need to join the minority on any highly controversial issue to upset the administration.
2. With the Republicans slated to occupy approximately 209 seats in the house next year, only nine or so conservative Democrats will be required for the formation of coalitions aimed at blocking administration moves in that branch.
3. Tradition will require that the committees of Congress be reshuffled to reduce the Democratic and increase the Republican memberships, further lessening the administration's grip on legislation.

Important Gain

The GOP gain in the senate is extremely important. In recent years, anti-New Deal senators have hesitated to effect coalitions with the Republicans because the ranks of the latter have been too thin to make the political mix worth while.

However, with the Republicans now only 11 votes short of a majority, the prospects of coalition movements in the senate are likely to appear more inviting to "surge" Democrats, who, on the basis of past performance, number from 12 to 18.

In the house, the conservative control will be virtually absolute, with the administration holding the reins little more than in name only.

There are 50 to 75 Democrats in the house, mostly southerners, who are generally considered to be anti-administration on domestic issues. Virtually all of them have (Continued on Page Five)

43 LOCAL MEN LEAVE FOR DUTY AGAINST AXIS

Forty-three Pickaway county men left Circleville at 9 a. m. Thursday for Columbus where they were to train for Fort Benjamin Harrison, Ind. The group, led by William H. Niles Jr., Circleville, appointed acting corporal, will be classified and assigned to the Hoosier camp and sent to various parts of the country for training.

All 43 men reported before 8:30 at the courthouse at the conclusion of their 14-day furloughs. Another group, including 27 men, will leave at the same hour Friday.

While these men are traveling to Fort Benjamin Harrison, the Selective Service board is preparing to send its November contingents to Columbus for final physical tests. One group will leave in mid-November and the second group a week later.

HAPPY HOLIDAY FOR MEN UNDER ARMS ASSURED

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 5—Uncle Sam's nephews in uniform are going to have a very merry Christmas, San Francisco postoffice officials revealed today.

So large is the deluge of holiday mail and packages for armed forces in battle areas that postal authorities have taken over a building as a two piers on the waterfront to expedite delivery.

Postmaster William H. McCarthy pointed out that whereas only five carloads of second, third and fourth class mail were handled at this time last year, this Tuesday 33 carloads of mail were handled, with 75 percent destined for soldiers, sailors and marines.

SEVEN MONTHS OLD, ANSWERS FANS PERSONALLY

When a photo, inset above, of seven-month-old Vicki Christine Swanson was released for national publication by Central Press, the results were immediate—and considerable. The fan mail started pouring into the Moline, Ill., home of Vicki's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leslie C. Swanson. Included were offers from magazines, art companies, advertisers, dairies and just plain fans. So Vicki sat herself down, above, and made a stab at pecking out the answers on her father's typewriter.

SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Nov. 5—The title of "American Queen" was borne lightly and modestly today by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt as she resumed her inspection tour of England. The title was conferred by 5-year old Tommy Maloney, one of the three English children "adopted" by the American first lady through the American foster parents.

Tommy had been chattering volubly about the meeting with his foster mother since he was told she was coming to England, but when he met her Wednesday he was completely tongue-tied and shy. So great was his embarrassment that he refused a piece of cake.

LOOT THAT PIG BANK, TURN IN CASH, IS PLEA

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—Americans were called upon today to loot their piggy banks and spend their pennies to save copper for the war effort.

In a luncheon speech before Chicago clubwomen, Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, director of the U. S. mint, declared:

"Last year's production of pennies, the greatest in history, consumed enough copper to meet the copper requirements for building two cruisers, two destroyers, 1,245 flying fortresses and 120 howitzers; or enough for 1,250,000 shells for our big guns.

"The drain on copper must be relieved by people taking their pennies out of the banks. Assuming that each family has an average of 40 pennies, the total amount hidden away would equal the mint's entire output for last year."

LONDON, Nov. 5—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt today sent a telegram to King George VI congratulating him on the "brilliant victory" of the British Eighth Army and other allied forces in the Egyptian desert.

FRENCH 'CHUTE TROOPERS HELP ALLIED THRUST

LONDON, Nov. 5—Paratroopers of the fighting French forces operating behind axis lines in Egypt are dealing heavy blows to the enemy, a Reuter dispatch from Beirut said today.

The parachutists are destroying isolated tanks and aircraft in daring raids on axis strong points such as Barka and Martouba. It was estimated that at least 100 enemy aircraft already have been destroyed.

EATING DUCKS DESERT CHIEF; HE COMPLAINS

Police Chief Will McCrady is charging desertion, but the charge is not against Mrs. McCrady. It's against two mallard ducks, a gift to him by a rural friend.

The chief said that the ducks, given to him a week ago, have left the pen in the rear of his West Franklin street home. Whether they were "borrowed", or decided to find new quarters, the chief does not know. Regardless, he is unhappy about the whole thing.

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—The jury in Chicago's treason trial was put on a stop-and-go basis today as prosecuting attorneys indicated they were ready to present signed statements made by five of the six defendants.

With the dam broken by the admission of Walter Froehling's "confession," U. S. Attorney J. Albert Woll reached first into his brief case for statements made by Otto and Kate Wergin.

Further down in Woll's preciously guarded stack of papers are recorded the self-written stories of Max and Erna Haupt, and Mrs. Lucille Froehling, who, like the others, are charged with aiding the Haupts' son, Herbert, since executed as a German saboteur.

If the previous pattern is followed, agents of the Federal Bureau of Investigation will testify to the circumstances under which the statements were given them. That's the cue for Defense Attorney (Continued on Page Five)

CRIME DOES NOT PAY LECTURER AWARE OF FACT

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—With an air of injured rectitude, Joseph "Yellow Kid" Weil complained today that the police are harassing him, thus interfering with his new career as a lecturer against sin-ful ways.

The "Yellow Kid" right now is out on $10,000 bond, awaiting trial on a charge of swindling two women out of $32,000. This is only one of many similar charges the dapper Kid has faced in his long career as a top flight confidence man.

It seems, he told Judge Donald S. McKinley, that every time he is on his way to fill a speaking engagement some officious cop picks him up and hauls him off to the police station for questioning.

"Why, I haven't done a thing wrong since 1935," he said. The judge sympathized with him and suggested that the police be rebuked.

The subject of Weil's lecture is "Crime doesn't pay." The "Yellow Kid" ought to know.

GEORGE COHAN, FAMED STAR OF THEATRE, DIES

Actor, Playwright, Singer And Song Writer Ill Many

"OVER THERE" COMPOSER

Recognized By Congress For Services Performed In
First World War

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—George M. Cohan, theatrical star, died today. He was 64 years old.

Seriously ill for many months, the comedian died at his home on Fifth avenue.

To millions of Americans, George M. Cohan was "Mr. Broadway" in person.

Perhaps more than any other man of his time, he epitomized the American theatre—its vitality, its growth, its changing moods. Actor, composer, playwright, maker of melodies and singer of songs, for nearly 55 years he was never more than a stone's throw from the footlights.

Wrote 60 Plays

His versatility was matched only by the warm, bubbling enthusiasm which flowed through everything he touched. On his 63rd birthday, a spry, twinkling-eyed veteran of the U. S. show business, he could point to 300 songs and vaudeville skits he had composed, more than 60 plays he had written, and more than 5,000 performances ranging from hits on Broadway to one-night stands in the hinterlands of America.

His parents, Jerry Cohan and Helen Costigan, were troupers of the old school and he was born on July 4, 1878, at Providence, R. I., while flags waved and firecrackers boomed in honor of Independence Day.

There was something symbolical in this birth date, for the patriotic note was strong in Cohan's work, as his songs, "Little Johnny Jones," "George Washington, Jr.," "Gee, Ain't I Glad I'm Home Again," and "The Yankee Prince" testified.

YOUNG AIRMAN MUM ON HERO MEDAL AWARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—The proud parents of Leonard S. Edelstein, 23, first class aviation radioman, were convinced today that their son is the most modest hero in the United States Navy.

When Leonard visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Edelstein, in Brooklyn in September, he gave the impression that his two years in service had been singularly uneventful. True, his body and legs were badly blistered, but that he explained, was sunburn. His new wrist watch, turned rusty, was ruined through carelessness, he related.

So it was with considerable surprise that the Edelsteins received a letter from Leonard inclosing a citation from Vice-Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet. The certificate commended Leonard and two others for "superhuman efforts" in freeing two rubber life rafts from a sinking patrol bomber and thereby saving the lives of thirteen passengers and crew members. The incident had occurred shortly before Leonard's furlough.

GREER OBTAINS LICENSE

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5—Greer Garson, the capable "Mrs. Miniver" of the films and Richard Ney, former actor now an ensign in the Navy, announced they will be married sometime next week end. The two, who appeared as mother and son in the picture "Mrs. Miniver," applied for a license to wed in Santa Monica. Miss Garson gave her age as 31 and Ney, 29.

F. D. R. Plea May Mean Free Trade

Requested Authority Would
Give Power To Abolish
Tariff For Duration

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—A move of far-reaching import today was seen in President Roosevelt's request to Congress for authority to suspend during the war any law interfering with the "free movement of persons, property and information" into and out of this country.

Authoritative sources disclosed that the President's request could pave the way for the establishment of a system of free trade among the United Nations during the war.

The requested grant of authority would give the President power to abolish for the duration of the war all tariffs, customs duties, excise taxes and other barriers which were erected during peacetime to curb the flow of foreign goods into the United States.

It was also empowered the President to do away with the restrictions placed on the purchases of foreign goods in the so-called "buy American" bill passed some years ago.

Complete Control

The requested measure would vest in the President complete control over the existing tariff structure of the country as long as the war lasts.

Official sources said that the general lowering of American tariff barriers is not the immediate purpose of the measure. Its primary purpose, it was said, is to enable the President to eliminate the complicated system of legal restrictions which surround the importation into this country now (Continued on Page Five)

SCHOOL PUPILS ADD 20 TONS TO SCRAP PILE

Twenty tons of scrap, all added to the great Victory Stockpile which Uncle Sam is building to beat the axis, were collected Wednesday afternoon by Circleville school children who conducted a house to house canvass.

Frank Fischer, school superintendent, expressed pleasure Thursday because of success of the afternoon's work, thanking the youngsters and Dan McClain and Herman Hill, salvage chairmen, who helped plan the drive. The youths who collected scrap from many houses in the city were under direction of Tom Armstrong, member of the high school faculty.

Scrap was picked up by youngsters who had carts and by trucks offered for the afternoon. All the salvaged material was taken directly to the Circleville Iron and Metal company yard.

Proceeds of the collection, totalling more than $200, will go to the Community Chest, which is slowly but surely climbing toward its $49,680 goal.

An Army jeep, loaned to the local salvagers by Fort Hayes, helped stir up interest Wednesday afternoon, and some members of the high school band went up and down the streets on a truck, playing various selections, and making plenty of noise.

BRITISH CHEER NEWS OF AXIS ROUT IN AFRICA

LONDON, Nov. 5—News of the allied rout of axis armies in Egypt, frustrating Nazi General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's cherished desire to gain control of the Nile valley and Suez, spread rapidly throughout Britain today and brought cheers on every hand.

Crowds in restaurants, including troops of American Expeditionary Forces, cheered madly as each additional report of the successful action was received.

Roars of glee were unrestrained last night when the British Broadcasting Company announcer broke into a musical program to impart the news.

LONDON, Nov. 5—The London Evening News said today that Adolf Hitler is rushing four divisions from the Russian front to the aid of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating axis forces in the Egyptian desert, quoting reports received in Istanbul from reliable sources in Greece.

The Rome-Berlin Axis trembled with apprehension today as the headlong retreat of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army continued along the entire 40-mile Egyptian front. Apparently sensing disaster in the desert battle,

"GERMANS RUNNING"

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Lieut. General Bernard Law Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth Army in Egypt, has advised his troops that "the enemy is in our power and is about to crack," the Cairo correspondent of CBS reported today.

"The British have won the battle of Egypt," the broadcaster said.

"The Germans are running for their lives."

the Rome radio referred to possibility of an early invasion of the European continent, "preferably through Italy."

On the same note the Axis controlled Vichy radio reported that the British battleship Rodney had arrived at Gibraltar to join a formidable concentration of warships and transports which Berlin had previously declared to be massed at the "rock."

While there was no confirmation of these reports in Allied circles, nervousness of the European axis partners was strikingly apparent as their vaunted Afrika Korps tasted bitter defeat at the hands of the British Eighth army and the allied air force.

London sensed collapse of Rommel's army and Reuter's military correspondent declared that the Axis forces were facing annihilation. He pointed out that the enemy divisions were being driven from their fortified positions and that no real defenses existed beyond (Continued on Page Five)

'OBJECTORS' GO TO ASYLUM FOR MENIAL DUTIES

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 5—A group of 25 conscientious objectors was put to work today at the Marlboro state hospital for the insane as "an experiment in human relations."

State Commissioner of Institutions William J. Ellis explained he secured the assignment of the objectors to the hospital to overcome an acute shortage of labor after receiving the approval of Gov. Charles Edison.

Ellis indicated that if the group at Marlboro becomes a success, additional units of the objectors may be assigned to other state hospitals.

The group includes Mennonites from Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. They will live at the hospital under strict military supervision and will receive $2.50 a month for taking care of the 2,500 patients at the institution.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—George M. Cohan, theatrical star, died today. He was 64 years old.

Seriously ill for many months, the comedian died at his home on Fifth avenue.

To millions of Americans, George M. Cohan was "Mr. Broadway" in person.

Perhaps more than any other man of his time, he epitomized the American theatre—its vitality, its growth, its changing moods. Actor, composer, playwright, maker of melodies and singer of songs, for nearly 55 years he was never more than a stone's throw from the footlights.

Wrote 60 Plays

His versatility was matched only by the warm, bubbling enthusiasm which flowed through everything he touched. On his 63rd birthday, a spry, twinkling-eyed veteran of the U. S. show business, he could point to 300 songs and vaudeville skits he had composed, more than 60 plays he had written, and more than 5,000 performances ranging from hits on Broadway to one-night stands in the hinterlands of America.

His parents, Jerry Cohan and Helen Costigan, were troupers of the old school and he was born on July 4, 1878, at Providence, R. I., while flags waved and firecrackers boomed in honor of Independence Day.

There was something symbolical in this birth date, for the patriotic note was strong in Cohan's work, as his songs, "Little Johnny Jones," "George Washington, Jr.," "Gee, Ain't I Glad I'm Home Again," and "The Yankee Prince" testified.

YOUNG AIRMAN MUM ON HERO MEDAL AWARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—The proud parents of Leonard S. Edelman, 23, first class aviation cadet, were convinced today that their son is the most modest hero in the United States Navy.

When Leonard visited his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Edelman, in Brooklyn in September, he gave the impression that his two years in service had been singularly uneventful. True, his body and legs were badly blistered, but that he explained, was sunburn. His new wrist watch, turned rusty, was ruined through carelessness, he related.

So it was with considerable surprise that the Edelsteins received a letter from Leonard inclosing a citation from Vice-Admiral Royal E. Ingersoll, commander-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet. The certificate commended Leonard and two others for "superhuman efforts" in freeing two rubber life rafts from a sinking patrol bomber and thereby saving the lives of thirteen passengers and crew members. The incident had occurred shortly before Leonard's furlough.

GREER OBTAINS LICENSE

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 5—Greer Garson, the capable "Mrs. Miniver" of the films and Richard Ney, former actor now an ensign in the Navy, announced they will be married sometime next week end. The two, who appeared as mother and son in the picture "Mrs. Miniver," applied for a license to wed in Santa Monica. Miss Garson gave her age as 31 and Ney, 29.

F. D. R. Plea May Mean Free Trade

Requested Authority Would
Give Power To Abolish
Tariff For Duration

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—A move of far-reaching import today was seen in President Roosevelt's request to Congress for authority to suspend during the war any law interfering with the "free movement of persons, property and information" into and out of this country.

Authoritative sources disclosed that the President's request could pave the way for the establishment of a system of free trade among the United Nations during the war.

The requested grant of authority would give the President power to abolish for the duration of the war all tariffs, customs duties, excise taxes and other barriers which were erected during peacetime to curb the flow of foreign goods into the United States.

It was also empowered the President to do away with the restrictions placed on the purchases of foreign goods in the so-called "buy American" bill passed some years ago.

Complete Control

The requested measure would vest in the President complete control over the existing tariff structure of the country as long as the war lasts.

Official sources said that the general lowering of American tariff barriers is not the immediate purpose of the measure. Its primary purpose, it was said, is to enable the President to eliminate the complicated system of legal restrictions which surround the importation into this country now (Continued on Page Five)

SCHOOL PUPILS ADD 20 TONS TO SCRAP PILE

Twenty tons of scrap, all added to the great Victory Stockpile which Uncle Sam is building to beat the axis, were collected Wednesday afternoon by Circleville school children who conducted a house to house canvass.

Frank Fischer, school superintendent, expressed pleasure Thursday because of success of the afternoon's work, thanking the youngsters and Dan McClain and Herman Hill, salvage chairmen, who helped plan the drive. The youths who collected scrap from many houses in the city were under direction of Tom Armstrong, member of the high school faculty.

Scrap was picked up by youngsters who had carts and by trucks offered for the afternoon. All the salvaged material was taken directly to the Circleville Iron and Metal company yard.

Proceeds of the collection, totalling more than $200, will go to the Community Chest, which is slowly but surely climbing toward its $49,680 goal.

An Army jeep, loaned to the local salvagers by Fort Hayes, helped stir up interest Wednesday afternoon, and some members of the high school band went up and down the streets on a truck, playing various selections, and making plenty of noise.

BRITISH CHEER NEWS OF AXIS ROUT IN AFRICA

LONDON, Nov. 5—News of the allied rout of axis armies in Egypt, frustrating Nazi General Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's cherished desire to gain control of the Nile valley and Suez, spread rapidly throughout Britain today and brought cheers on every hand.

Crowds in restaurants, including troops of American Expeditionary Forces, cheered madly as each additional report of the successful action was received.

Roars of glee were unrestrained last night when the British Broadcasting Company announcer broke into a musical program to impart the news.

LONDON, Nov. 5—The London Evening News said today that Adolf Hitler is rushing four divisions from the Russian front to the aid of Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's retreating axis forces in the Egyptian desert, quoting reports received in Istanbul from reliable sources in Greece.

By International News Service

The Rome-Berlin Axis trembled with apprehension today as the heading retreat of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's army continued along the entire 40-mile Egyptian front. Apparently sensing disaster in the desert battle,

"GERMANS RUNNING"

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Lieut. General Bernard Law Montgomery, commander of the British Eighth Army in Egypt, has advised his troops that "the enemy is in our power and is about to crack," the Cairo correspondent of CBS reported today.

"The British have won the battle of Egypt," the broadcaster said.

"The Germans are running for their lives."

the Rome radio referred to possibility of an early invasion of the European continent, "preferably through Italy."

On the same note the Axis controlled Vichy radio reported that the British battleship Rodney had arrived at Gibraltar to join a formidable concentration of warships and transports which Berlin had previously declared to be massed at the "Rock."

While there was no confirmation of these reports in Allied circles, nervousness of the European axis partners was strikingly apparent as their vaunted Afrika Korps tasted bitter defeat at the hands of the British Eighth army and the allied air force.

London sensed collapse of Rommel's army and Reuter's military correspondent declared that the Axis forces were facing annihilation. He pointed out that the enemy divisions were being driven from their fortified positions and that no real defenses existed before (Continued on Page Five)

'OBJECTORS' GO TO ASYLUM FOR MENIAL DUTIES

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 5—A group of 25 conscientious objectors was put to work today at the Marlboro state hospital for the insane as "an experiment in human relations."

State Commissioner of Institutions William J. Ellis explained he secured the assignment of the objectors to the hospital to overcome an acute shortage of labor after receiving the approval of Gov. Charles Edison.

Ellis indicated that if the group at Marlboro becomes a success, additional units of the objectors may be assigned to other state hospitals.

The group includes Mennonites from Indiana, Illinois and Michigan. They will live at the hospital under strict military supervision and will receive $2.50 per month for taking care of the 2,500 patients at the institution.

CHILE DEPORTS SPIES

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 5—The government's campaign to rid Chile of axis espionage was speeded up today by deportation proceedings against twelve alleged spies. Ten German and two Italian nationals were ordered deported.

FRISCH MAY BE NEW BUM BOSS UNDER RICKEY

Pirate Manager Liked By Chief Executive, But Pirates May Kick

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—Though we are not being exactly original—since everyone from Broadway Rose to Jim Farley has been mentioned for the job—we'd like to inform you today that the next manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers may be none other than good old Ferdie Frankie Frisch!

That's not a guess. It's the report of one of our most highly paid personal Gesteap agents, who does not shoot off his mouth just to show off his pearly white molars. Frisch is highly regarded by Branch Rickey, new president and general manager of the Dodgers, and as we get it, may come to Brooklyn, if he can secure a release from his current employers, the Pittsburgh Pirates.

No offer has yet been made, as far as we can learn, but Rickey undoubtedly will take up the matter in the near future. He is scheduled to report to his down-town Brooklyn office this afternoon to begin his long-awaited job of reconstruction on the Gowanus darlings.

While Frisch is the No. 1 man in the brain's plans at the moment, he may not be released by President Bill Benswanger of the Pirates.

Each club has to file a reserve list each Winter and no man on it, including the manager, can negotiate for a new job without a written release.

Once With Rickey

Frisch, who once worked for Rickey and Sam Breadon as manager of the Cardinals from 1933 through 1938, finished fifth, first, second, second, fourth and sixth with them before shifting over to the Pirates.

He succeeded Harold (Pie) Traynor at the helm of the Pittsburgh club at the end of the '39 season and, with rather flimsy material, hasn't had much success with that club. The Pirates finished in the second division this season and Frankie undoubtedly would jump at an offer from Rickey—if Owner Benswanger unlocked his chains.

While Rickey respects Frisch's baseball ability we understand he also wants to have some of the fire and aggressiveness the Gowanus faithful love, remain at Ebbets field.

With Larry MacPhail in the Army and Leo the Lip wearing out his living room rug in St. Louis practicing "squads right," the home of the famed "Bums" would be too much like a morgue under a pilot who believes in discussing balls and strikes in tea-time tones.

For this reason, we're told, Burt Shotton, while highly respected by Rickey, does not figure as prominently in the brain's plans as Frisch. Shotton, a quiet-speaking gentleman, has been coaching at Cleveland, and has had his name mentioned, along with 5,698 others, as the successor to the Lip.

If Benswanger should refuse to release Frisch or if Frank can't come to terms with Rickey (the remote possibilities) we understand the brain will probably go along with the organization as it was this year and pick his manager from the dugout crew of 1942.

Should that be the case the new manager will be Charlie (Chuck) Dessen. Wanna bet?

Ted Williams' Value To Sox Not Sufficient

By Lawton Carver
NEW YORK, Nov. 5—To hear the supporters of Ted Williams tell it, you'd think the Boston Red Sox outfielder was jobbed out of the American league most valuable player award, which rightfully went to Joe Gordon, acrobatic second baseman of the New York Yankees.

Actually, Williams was lucky even to make it close despite his heroic hitting. The award is based on a player's value to his team, with deportment and sportsmanship considerable factors.

On that basis, Williams eliminated himself in mid-July. The exact date was July 2. It looked at the time as though the Red Sox might overhaul the Yankees and possibly go on to the American league pennant. Williams picked this spot to prove his lack of value as a team man rather than to continue toward clinching the award.

The Yankees had struggled through the West in their worst slump of the season. The Red Sox had breezed along to 20 wins in their last 24 starts to cut the Yankee lead to three games, when Williams was benched against the Senators and fined $250 for loafing. This was on the eve of a three-game series with the Yankees at Boston. This was the Red Sox's big chance. It was, in fact, to all intents and purposes the possible turning point of the race.

After fining Williams, Manager Joe Cronin gave him a tongue-lashing and in reply to Williams' squawk over the boos of the fans, the reason for his loafing and sulking, Cronin said:

"It's the privilege of the fans through the West in their worst slump of the season. The Red Sox had breezed along to 20 wins in their last 24 starts to cut the Yankee lead to three games, when Williams was benched against the Senators and fined $250 for loafing. This was on the eve of a three-game series with the Yankees at Boston. This was the Red Sox's big chance. It was, in fact, to all intents and purposes the possible turning point of the race.

BIG TRIO WILL RUN FOR PURSE ARMISTICE DAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5 — A star-spangled race for the Star Spangled Banner, bringing together Whirlaway, the world's greatest money winner, Alsab, the colt that beat him twice — and mighty Riverland, the miracle horse that whipped both of them, within 72 hours! That's what racing fans were looking forward very hopefully to here today as racing launched victory week, its final drive for dough for war relief, at Belmont Park.

The Turf Committee of America, sponsors of the Sport of Kings' Rally, which has raised $2,004,000 for this worthy cause so far, predicted today they would raise another $250,000 or $300,000 with a fair break in the weather.

If they can bring the above trio together and they probably will, despite what you may have heard or read, the resulting $10,000, winner-take-all mile and one quarter victory sweepstakes, Armistice day, will go down in history as a glorious finale to a great racing year.

Despite reports that both Riverland and Whirlly would remain at Pimlico for the remainder of the meeting, it was learned yesterday the turf committee was virtually certain Riverland would ship here for the big race.

BUCKS TO TRY FOR KNOCK OUT IN PITT JOUST

Panthers Will Test Ohio, Rebounding Following Wisconsin Loss

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5 — Ohio State's Buckeyes will try to "knock the socks off" the Pitt Panther Saturday in Ohio Stadium at 2:30 p. m. The Buckeyes are planning no painless claw clipping job.

It will be the comeback trail the Bucks assay Saturday but more important than that, they want to prove to their Head Coach Paul Brown they have the stuff of which champions are made.

And as Coach Brown sees it, the Ohio State-Pittsburgh clash will give them a big test. "It takes a great team to come back after being counted out in one game," he said. "And I think my team this year is that kind of an outfit."

While not underestimating Pitt and its two-victory-record to date, Brown and his gridders have worked hard this week for a clean-cut win Saturday. They want to regain the confidence and psychological temperament that comes with victories, looking toward their three toughest opponents on successive Saturdays—Illinois (at Cleveland) November 14; Michigan and Iowa Seahawks.

Anticipating a crowd of 40,000 which will push the Buckeyes' attendance mark for the season over 300,000, the Pitt-Ohio game will mark the seventh renewal of their rivalry. Ohio holds an edge in the series to date with three victories, one tie and two defeats. The last victory for Pitt over the Bucks was in 1939.

Starters Named

For the Bucks' "big test" Coach Brown will call on a starting lineup composed of three sophomores and eight veteran lettermen. Two of the sophomores Bill Willis, Columbus, tackle, and Gene Fekete, Findlay, fullback — have proved themselves in conference competition. The third sophomore, Dante Lavelli, Hudson, end, will have an opportunity at last to prove his mettle. Hampered by injuries since the opener, Lavelli will draw his second starting assignment.

The Pitt team which arrives in Columbus Friday is minus only one of its last year "greats" — "Special Delivery" Jones. In his place, the Panthers will feature a triple-threat star, Dutton, Saska, 195-pound fullback, will match line-plunging ability with Ohio State's Gene Fekete, and at one halfback position for Pitt will be Statler, intercollegiate hurdle specialist.

Whether the psychological edge will rest with the Pittsburgh or Ohio State is a question. Pitt trounced Carnegie Tech to win the championship of the Smoky City last Saturday while the Bucks were falling before Wisconsin. Other bright mark on Pitt's season to date is the upset victory over unbeaten Southern Methodist university.

A political novelty this year is a state party platform only half a column long.

GROVE CITY 11 TO TEST TIGERS IN FRIDAY TILT

Another hotly-contested grid-iron contest, several of which have already been thrilling Circleville fans, will be offered again Friday night when Circleville high Tigers and Grove City Greyhounds meet on the local field.

The game, final one on the Tiger home schedule, will start at 8 o'clock.

Last year Circleville went to Grove City highly favored to run up a score on the Greyhounds. Instead the game, played in a gale, developed into a battle. The Red and Black won 14 to 6, but knew that a ball game had been played. Grove City has been strong for several years and, although its record is not so good as the Red and Black, promises to be good enough to cause plenty of trouble.

Status of three Tigers who are injured remains in doubt. Tom Shea and Jim Dade have been suffering sprains and bruises, while Dud Smallwood has been fighting appendicitis. It is possible that of the trio only Dade, an end, will be able to play.

HARDER TO BE READY FOR HAWKEYE CONTEST

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 5 — Pat Harder, Badger star confined with a cold, was expected today to be ready when Wisconsin takes the field against the Iowa Hawkeyes.

who pay their way in to boo anybody they think is not doing his best. Williams is going to hustle for the Red Sox or he won't be in there."

Does that sound like the description of a "most valuable" ball player coming from his manager at a time like that?

While Williams thus was carrying on his feud with the customers, Gordon was carrying most of the hitting burden for the Yankees and did more than any other single individual to put them in the world series. What happened after that doesn't matter. His incredible slump against the Cardinals doesn't count in the most valuable player award because the voting among the members of the committee is done prior to the series.

Some insist that Johnny Pesky, Red Sox infielder, rather than Gordon, should have received the award.

DIP EVANS OUT OF IRISH TILT AGAINST ARMY

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 5.—All Notre Dame crumples with the exception of Left Half Owen Evans were pronounced fit today as the Irish took a light workout before leaving for New York to meet Army.

Saturday's game will pit Notre Dame's star quarterback, Angelo Bertelli, against the Cadets' triple threat ace, Hank Mazur. Bertelli's passes have gained 622 yards for Notre Dame this season while Mazur has traveled 346 yards for Army or 7.5 yards a trip in five games.

Statistics show that Mazur has been ably supported by Ralph Hill, right half, who has gained 73 yards in 23 trips, and George Troxell, plebe fullback, with 267 yards in 63 trips.

In yesterday's hard workout the Irish stressed defensive play against Army's running attack with passes tossed in to keep the secondary defense on its toes. The Cadets, ranking to national statistics, rank 10th in the nation on defense, yielding only 142 yards a game, while the Irish have surrendered 171 yards a game.

To the Voters of Pickaway County

I wish to thank you for your wonderful support and confidence in electing me as your representative to the General Assembly and I assure you that I will never betray that confidence.

BUCKS TO TRY FOR KNOCK OUT IN PITT JOUST

Panthers Will Test Ohio,
Rebounding Following
Wisconsin Loss

COLUMBUS, Nov. 5.—Ohio State's Buckeyes will try to "knock the socks off" the Pitt Panther Saturday in Ohio Stadium at 2:30 p. m. The Buckeyes are planning no painless claw clipping job.

It will be the comeback trail the Bucks assay Saturday but more important than that, they want to prove to their Head Coach Paul Brown they have the stuff of which champions are made.

And as Coach Brown sees it, the Ohio State-Pittsburgh clash will give them a big test. "It takes a great team to come back after being counted out in one game," he said. "And I think my team this year is that kind of an outfit."

While not underestimating Pitt and its two-victory record to date, Brown and his gridgers have worked hard this week for a clean-cut win Saturday. They want to regain the confidence and psychological temperament that comes with victories, looking toward their three toughest opponents on successive Saturdays—Illinois (at Cleveland) November 14; Michigan and Iowa Seashawks.

Anticipating a crowd of 40,000 which will push the Buckeyes' attendance mark for the season over 300,000, the Pitt-Ohio game will mark the seventh renewal of their rivalry. Ohio holds an edge in the series to date with three victories, one tie and two defeats. The last victory for Pitt over the Bucks was in 1936.

Starters Named
For the Bucks' "big test" Coach Brown will call on a starting lineup composed of three sophomores and eight veteran lettermen. Two of the sophomores Bill Willis, Columbus, tackle, and Gene Fekete, Findlay, fullback—have proved themselves in conference competition. The third sophomore, Dante Lavelli, Hudson, end, will have an opportunity at last to prove his mettle. Hampered by injuries since the opener, Lavelli will draw his second starting assignment.

The Pitt team which arrives in Columbus Friday is minus only one of its last year "greats"—"Special Delivery" Jones. In his place, the Panthers will feature a triple-threat star, Dutton, Saska, 195-pound fullback, will match line-plunging ability with Ohio State's Gene Fekete, and at one halfback position for Pitt will be Statler, intercollegiate hurdle specialist.

Whether the psychological edge will rest with the Pittsburgh or Ohio State is a question. Pitt trounced Carnegie Tech to win the championship of the Smoky City last Saturday while the Bucks were falling before Wisconsin. Other bright mark on Pitt's season to date is the upset victory over unbeaten Southern Methodist university.

A political novelty this year is a state party platform only half a column long.

GROVE CITY 11 TO TEST TIGERS IN FRIDAY TILT

Another hotly-contested gridiron contest, several of which have already been thrilling Circleville fans, will be offered again Friday night when Circleville high Tigers and Grove City Greyhounds meet on the local field.

The game, final one on the Tiger home schedule, will start at 8 o'clock.

Last year Circleville went to Grove City highly favored to run up a score on the Greyhounds. Instead the game, played in a gale, developed into a battle. The Red and Black won 14 to 6, but knew that a ball game had been played.

Grove City has been strong for several years and, although its record is not so good as the Red and Black, promises to be good enough to cause plenty of trouble. Status of three Tigers who are injured remains in doubt. Tom Shea and Jim Dade have been suffering sprains and bruises, while Dud Smallwood has been fighting appendicitis. It is possible that of the trio only Dade, an end, will be able to play.

HARDER TO BE READY FOR HAWKEYE CONTEST

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 5.—Pat Harder, Badger star confined with a cold, was expected today to be ready when Wisconsin takes the field against the Iowa Hawkeyes

COUNCIL FACES BIG PROBLEM AT CITY HOSPITAL

Failure Of Special Levy Means Service Must Be Revised

BOARD TO ACT SOON

Additional Necessary Items Of Expense Add To Worry Of Legislators

Failure of the three-fourths mill levy for Berger hospital purposes came in for only a short discussion Wednesday evening at Circleville council meeting, with councilmen contemplating steps which will be taken soon to alleviate the financial situation surrounding the municipal institution.

Councilmen lamented the fact that the tax levy had been put at the bottom of the special state constitutional amendment issue, several officials declaring that they had been told by numerous voters that they believed they had marked their tickets in an incorrect manner.

Action will be taken during the next two weeks to bring about revisions in operation of the hospital. It is possible that council will call members of the medical profession into a conference in an effort to obtain suggestions for cutting down costs.

Berger hospital treasury at present shows a balance of $511.75 with more than $600 outstanding in September bills. All salaries are paid to date.

Two additional items of expense must be met, state health board ordering establishment of a maternity ward, and council seeking to follow the board's order as soon as a priority order for equipment can be obtained, and purchase of a new instrument sterilizer being necessary. The sterilizer in use since opening of the hospital 12 years ago has gone bad, thus necessitating ordering a new one.

Just what will be worked out in connection with the hospital is not known, but councilmen agree that something must be done. Deficits are taken each year from the general fund, thus cutting this account short.

Circleville's city treasury to date contains $37,744.25, council was told Wednesday evening by Finance Chairman Frank A. Lynch, this figure including $16,470.57 in general fund, $1,287.12 in library fund, $7,488.67 in sewage disposal plant fund, $6,705.26 in auto street repair fund, $5,280.88 in gasoline tax fund and $511.75 in hospital fund with about $600 in outstanding bills.

Councilmen appropriated $75 for purchase of sewer tire to provide the service department with a supply for repairs and other purposes. Mayor Ben H. Gordon had a quiet month in October so far as fines was concerned, but the amount of forfeited bonds was a high one. Only $10 was collected in fines, but $415 in bonds went into the treasury from the mayor's court.

HOGS ADVANCE, CATTLE STEADY ON LOCAL MART

Another large sale was conducted Wednesday by the Pickaway county Livestock Cooperative association with 343 head of cattle, 664 hogs, 71 calves and 376 sheep and lambs offered.

Cattle price remained steady, while hogs went a little higher, top prices being $14.40 for 180 to 260 pounders and the same bid for 250 to 400 pounders.

Top price for cattle was $12.90 for medium to good stock, while top calves brought $16.90 and top sheep $13.95.

RUGGLES WILL CONTEST GETS UNDER WAY DEC. 1

Trial of the will contest of Miss Elizabeth J. Ruggles, formerly of Circleville, in Los Angeles, Cal., courts are scheduled to start December 1 with several local institutions, including Home and Hospital, Presbyterian church and Berger hospital to receive substantial amounts of money if the will is upheld in west coast courts.

Circleville council was advised Wednesday night by Solicitor Joseph W. Adkins that all testimony covering the city's part in the court action had been submitted to the California court in depositions. He pointed out that representation by counsel at the trial would not be necessary, and advised against it.

The Ruggles estate locally includes two of the county's finest farms and a business block in Columbus. Two local nieces, Mrs. Joseph B. Noecker and Mrs. Paul E. Adkins, are principal beneficiaries in addition to their cousin, Holliday Ruggles of Columbus. The will is being contested by Mrs. Noecker and Mrs. Adkins.
In addition to the local institutional bequests, Miss Ruggles, who for many years had made handsome contributions to worthy Circleville and Pickaway county causes, has devised that sums of money be given to several west coast institutions.

RUGGLES WILL CONTEST GETS UNDER WAY DEC. 1

Trial of the will contest of Miss Elizabeth J. Ruggles, formerly of Circleville, in Los Angeles, Cal., courts is scheduled to start December 1 with several local institutions, including Home and Hospital, Presbyterian church and Berger hospital to receive substantial amounts of money if the will is upheld in west coast courts.

Circleville council was advised Wednesday night by Solicitor Joseph W. Adkins that all testimony covering the city's part in the court action had been submitted to the California court in depositions. He pointed out that representation by counsel at the trial would not be necessary, and advised against it.

The Ruggles estate locally includes two of the county's finest farms and a business block in Columbus. Two local nieces, Mrs. Joseph B. Noecker and Mrs. Paul E. Adkins, are principal beneficiaries in addition to their cousin, Holliday Ruggles of Columbus. The will is being contested by Mrs. Noecker and Mrs. Adkins.

In addition to the local institutional bequests, Miss Ruggles, who for many years had made handsome contributions to worthy Circleville and Pickaway county causes, has devised that sums of money be given to several west coast institutions.

Wayne Township School Levy Also Defeated By Single Ballot

Eight thousand one hundred and fifty-four ballots were cast Tuesday in Pickaway county's general election, this number being about four-fifths of the usual total cast at an off-year election.

Official count, announced Thursday by the Pickaway county election board, failed to make any change in the outcome of the balloting, all Republicans being swept into office. Forrest Short, successful candidate for reelection as auditor, paced the ticket with 4,761 votes, 49 ahead of Governor John W. Bricker. Wayne Brown of Madison township, also a loser, led the Democratic candidates in the county with 3,628.

The official check also leaves the Circleville tax levy a loser by 74 votes, and leaves the Wayne township school issue a loser by a single vote, 56 ballots being cast for it and 56 against it with a 51 percent total required for passage. Issues carried in Ashville, Scioto township, Muhlenberg township and Darbyville.

CITY ABANDONS PURCHASE PLAN ON WATER WORKS

Possibility of purchasing the Ohio Water Service company plant, considered for several months by Circleville council, was abandoned Wednesday night when Frank A. Lynch, chairman of the finance committee, announced that committee's recommendation that the project be given up.

Mr. Lynch's report was accepted by his colleagues in council, thus putting possible purchase of the utility in the discard.

The finance chairman said that the committee's recommendation had been agreed on following careful consideration. Bonding companies were interested in financing the purchase. Mr. Lynch said uncertain conditions at present, the $550,000 price tag put on the property by the utility, and possible reduction in revenues had prompted the committee to take its action.

Immediately after his report was received, Councilman J. Donald Mason advised that steps be taken at once to fix rates with the company for domestic and fire hydrant service. He pointed out that the city's contract with the utility had expired four years ago, but that no effort had been made to provide a new one.

Washington C. H. council has also been considering purchase of the water company's plant, but has not yet taken any definite action. The Ohio Water Service company which serves Circleville also serves the Fayette county seat.

Main offices of the utility are in Struthers, O. Harry B. Denman is local manager.

PICKAWAY AAA GIVES APPROVAL TO STABILIZATION

Pickaway county AAA went on record Thursday in support of a stabilization program for the nation's dairy, livestock and poultry farms. John G. Boggs, chairman, declaring announcement by Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower Commission, as "a step in the right direction."

"Unless the farm war effort is supported by an adequate reservoir of manpower," Boggs pointed out, "it seems extremely doubtful that our farmers could hope to produce food and fiber in quantities sufficiently large to meet the requirements of the United Nations. The action of the War Manpower Commission for that reason, then, is especially welcome."

The WMC program stipulates that the Selective Service system will request local boards to classify in group 3-B those dairy, livestock and poultry farm workers who are deferred on grounds of dependency.

Local draft boards also will be asked to grant occupational deferment to dairy, livestock and poultry farmers and farm hands without grounds for dependency deferment, but who are "necessary men" for whom replacements are not available.

Workers in the latter group would be subject to reclassification and possible induction as soon as they ceased to perform the necessary work for which they had been granted deferment.

M'COY DEFEATS GOVERNMENT IN FARM LAND SUIT

Action which required five years of litigation in U. S. district court has finally been completed with Valdo R. McCoy, widely known Fayette countian, being returned winner and retaining possession of 1,000 acres of valuable Pickaway county land.

The U. S. government started proceedings in 1937 against Mr. McCoy, but the farm operator was informed Wednesday that all action had been dismissed.

Mr. McCoy had purchased the land formerly owned by Lincoln Kirkpatrick after a court order had been issued providing for sale of the property. Later the government sought to exercise an option on the property, seeking to divide it into small tracts for part of its Scioto Farms rural resettlement program.

Other steps to be taken by the USDA include assisting dairy, livestock and poultry farmers by helping them build up livestock numbers, training unskilled workers, aiding farm operators in buying or renting more productive farms, providing service for skilled farm operators and laborers and assisting in transporting them to farms where they are most needed.

AGRICULTURE PROJECTS INCREASED BY SCHOOL

Kenneth Holtrey of Walnut township school announced Thursday that the Walnut Vocational Agriculture department has increased the number of projects to be taken up by members of the class this year.

Many of the projects undertaken by youths of the class represent 100 percent ownership by the boys. Last year the class started with 39 boys and this year that number is expanded to 43.

All of the boys who had swine projects last year will raise two litters of pigs this year, a total of 76 litters to be provided for the Food for Freedom program.

BOY SCOUTS TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING DEC. 9

December 9 has been established as the date for the annual Pickaway county district Boy Scout meeting, with plans being advanced by the Rev. Robert T. Kelsey, district chairman, to make the event a major one. Memorial Hall will likely be the scene of the gathering with an interesting program to be provided.

Election of district officers will be the most important item of business, with Dan McClain serving as chairman of the nominating committee. Program is in charge of Glen Gelb and attendance in charge of Herman Hill.

Outline of the meeting was made Wednesday when scout leaders gathered in Pickaway Arms for a luncheon session. Attending were the Rev. Mr. Kelsey, Joe W. Adkins, Mr. McClain, N. L. Cochran, Virgil M. Cress and L. R. Bucher and Earl McVey, district scout executives.

Scout leaders discussed various phases of the program in Pickaway county and mapped plans for extension of organization to include several other villages and churches in addition to those which already have Boy Scout troops.

Scouting interest is growing in Circleville and Pickaway county, with more leadership, long a grave need, being developed.

Both the Army and Navy have pledged to refrain from recruiting essential dairy, livestock or poultry workers or producers, accepting them for voluntary enlistment, or initiating programs to encourage their enlistment in areas where critical shortages of such workers exist.

An attempt to stem the flow of skilled farm labor to war industries is seen in the WMC announcement that all employers will be instructed to refrain from hiring skilled workers who have been engaged in the same three types of farm production.

As its part in the WMC farm labor program, the U. S. Department of Agriculture will act to stabilize wages on dairy, livestock and poultry farms with a view to assisting these farmers in their efforts to secure and to maintain an adequate supply of labor.

The USDA also will take necessary steps to control sale of dairy cows for slaughter to check the trend threatening dairy production.

Kelsey, district chairman, to make the event a major one. Memorial Hall will likely be the scene of the gathering with an interesting program to be provided.

Election of district officers will be the most important item of business, with Dan McClain serving as chairman of the nominating committee. Program is in charge of Glen Gelb and attendance in charge of Herman Hill. Outline of the meeting was made Wednesday when scout leaders gathered in Pickaway Arms for a luncheon session. Attending were the Rev. Mr. Kelsey, Joe W. Adkins, Mr. McClain, N. L. Cochran, Virgil M. Cress and L. R. Bucher and Earl McVey, district scout executives. Scout leaders discussed various phases of the program in Pickaway county and mapped plans for extension of organization to include several other villages and churches in addition to those which already have Boy Scout troops.

Scouting interest is growing in Circleville and Pickaway county, with more leadership, long a grave need, being developed.

CAN'T KEEP GRANDMA IN HER CHAIR

She's as Lively as a Youngster— Now her Backache is better

Many sufferers believe nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

him along with them on their tours. But, "at the age of seven," he once recalled, grinning, "I guess I got too big to fit into the top tray of my mother's theatre trunk, so she sent me back to Providence and I started school."

Two years later, however, he was back in the show-business—this time for good. He was billed as "master George, child violinist." Then he made his debut as a professional actor in Haverstraw, N. Y., in a melodrama called, "Daniel Boone on the trail."

He also doubled as second fiddler in the orchestra and as a barker selling songs during intermissions.

Star at Eleven

At 11, he was the star of "Peck's Bad Boy." Later he joined his parents and his sister, Josephine, the family billing themselves as "The Four Cohans." Until he was 20 he remained as part of the troupe, travelling widely from coast to coast and becoming, without quite being aware of it, an authority on the American scene.

Shortly after the turn of the century he joined the late Sam Harris, theatrical producer, and as partners for the next 15 years they produced more than half a hundred plays, revues and comedies. At one time they owned six theatres in New York and Chicago.

To their credit lay "On Trial," "The Miracle Man," "The Defendant," "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford," "Seven Keys to Baldpate," "Royal Vagabond," "Cohan Revues," and many other hits of the first two decades of the 1900's.

Wrote "Over There"

When the World War came Cohan plunged into doing his bit. His greatest song-success, "Over There," came to him as he was on the way to his office. He began humming the tune and the song "just about wrote itself," he said.

Nora Bayes took it and sang it, and the nation's armed forces gave it a thundering obligato as they marched to it and whistled it. The song sold 3,000,000 copies and President Woodrow Wilson's secretary, Joseph Tumulty, sent off a note one day:

"Dear George Cohan: The President considers your war song 'Over There,' a genuine inspiration to all American manhood."

Receives Medal

Congress voted him a gold medal "in recognition of his services" in the World War.

As a theatrical personality, Cohan was unique and inimitable. He would talk from the corner of his mouth, as though he were making asides to his audience, and they loved it. A raconteur of note, his fund of stories was inexhaustible, and most of them dealt with the theatre.

Although in later years he was praised for his excellent characterizations, Cohan would dismiss any suggestion that he was an actor with a capital A.

"I'm a song and dance man," he insisted. "I just act on the side. I'm a jack of all trades. When I started out, you had to be. But I wouldn't advise anyone starting in the theatre now to try that. Today you've got to specialize."

RUSSELL LAPE HONORED BY PICKAWAY MASONS

Russell W. Lape, East Mill street, was elected Wednesday night by Pickaway lodge No. 23, Free and Accepted Masons, as worshipful master. He will succeed Joseph C. Peters, who becomes trustee.

Other officers elected were Harry W. Sark, senior warden; Harold H. Ullom, junior warden; George E. Hammel, treasurer; George E. Roth, secretary; Lemuel B. Weldon, senior deacon; Robert Goodchild, junior deacon; Elmer Howard, senior steward; Elgin Merriman, junior steward, and George H. Roof, tiler.

SPEEDER FINED

Robert W. Parrett, Frankfort, was fined $10 and costs Wednesday by Squire B. T. Hedges for speeding on Route 23. Parrett was arrested by Patrolman H. G. Watson of the state highway patrol. The driver, who was operating his car at 60 miles an hour, thus forfeiting any right he might have to buy new tires, paid and was released.

MRS. FLAVE BAIRD DIES

Mrs. Walter Metzger of Wilson avenue has received word of the death Wednesday of her cousin, Mrs. Flave Baird, in Roanoke hospital, Roanoke, Virginia. Mrs. Baird was the former Edith Baer, daughter of the late John Baer of Circleville. Funeral services will be Friday afternoon in Columbus.

F. D. R. Plea May Mean Free Trade

For example, some strategic materials, including copper, cannot be imported into America in some instances unless ear-marked for a specific branch of the armed services, though they may be required by one of the war industries.

While the immediate purpose of the requested measure is intended to cut this red tape, it is admitted that in its broader import, it would give the President authority to lower trade barriers in any way he sees fit during the war.

The reduction of international economic barriers is one of the fundamental objectives of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's foreign trade policy. One of his major peace aims is a system of open trade among the United Nations, guaranteeing non-discrimination in commercial relations.

Favored By Hull

If the President receives the requested grant of authority, it could be used to aid Secretary Hull in establishing, during the war, at least, his system of free trade. If this system was firmly established among the United Nations during the world conflict, it is felt that it might be easier to retain it afterward than it would be to get Congress to agree to any general lowering of tariff barriers when the war is over.

girl, and Kerman Garale, a 14-year-old Spanish lass. They also were overawed and speechless.

The call on the children wound up another busy day for the American visitor. She visited the home field of the American Eagle Squadron, Queens college at Cambridge, a Red Cross station and a canteen of the Women's Voluntary services.

The day marked the end of a five-year-autograph quest for Private Harry Goldstein of Newark, N. J. He failed in his first effort in Washington in 1937, and was close to failure again. Mrs. Roosevelt at first demurred, saying there was no place convenient for writing. Then she relented and used his back as a table.

Then Private Alfred Forestieri of Wilmington, Del., crowded up and got himself an autograph.

ALLIED MARCH THROUGH ITALY HINTED IN ROME

London Believes Collapse Of Rommel's Army May Be Early Development

hind the comparatively shallow front.

Casualties High

While there have been no official estimates of axis casualties and losses of equipment, they were reported to be "exceptionally high."

Late this afternoon, with the British pressing steadily forward across the desert wastes, the "box-score" stood this way:

1—More than 600 enemy planes destroyed or damaged in air combats on the ground.

2—More than 100,000 tons of axis shipping—essential to replenishment of Rommel's forces—sunk or damaged since the British offensive began only 13 days ago.

3—More than 9,000 axis prisoners—almost equivalent to a full desert division—captured, with the number mounting hourly.

4—At least 270 guns destroyed or captured and 260 German and Italian tanks reduced to wreckage.

5—General Ritter Von Stumme, commander of the German Afrika Korps and second in leadership to Rommel himself, dead.

6—Other high ranking German and Italian officers captured.

One report reaching London said that the axis had lost at least half of its effective strength in the field.

Today's communique declared that the British imperials were advancing along the whole line. Some axis strongholds remained to be cleaned out on the southern end of the line, but in the north the enemy was retreating behind a screen of tanks and anti-tank guns.

Reports from Ankara said four German divisions, withdrawn from the Russian front, had passed through Greece en route to the island of Crete, whence, it was presumed, they would be ferried to Egypt to bolster the hard-hit axis ranks.

Russians Show Power

News from Russia made it clear that troops could be ill-spared from that front, for the Soviet armies were on the offensive throughout the Volga-Caucasus area. The Russian lines held in Stalingrad and around Natchik on the eastern slopes of the Caucasus range. On other fronts Soviet troops pressed the enemy back—northwest of Stalingrad, on the Mordok sector of the central Caucasus, and along the Black Sea coast.

The third axis partner was also reported "on the run" in New Guinea as Australian jungle fighters pressed on in the drive to push the Japanese back to the sea. Fighting was reported in the vicinity of Olvi, nine miles beyond the captured enemy base of Kokoda. Allied planes pounded enemy positions from Olvi to Buna, and bomber squadrons blasted Japanese bases on Timor and at Lae and Salamaua in New Guinea.

A lull appeared to have developed in the Solomons. The latest Navy communique, covering actions of Tuesday, said American Marine and Army forces on Guadalcanal island were making slight gains west of their positions guarding Henderson field.

There was no report of further activity by the Japanese forces which made a night landing east of the field, and there was some speculation in Washington that the Marines had "dealt with" this force.

MERIT AWARD GIVEN DISPLAY AT C. C. PLANT

Certificate of Merit was given a prominent position in the Container Corporation of America plant offices Thursday following presentation of the award to plant managers by Earl A. Smith, chairman of the Pickaway county War Bond committee.

One hundred percent of Container plant employees are participating in the payroll deduction plan for War Bond buying. The Certificate of Merit, granted by state War Savings committee officials, is the second honor award received by the company. A Minute Man flag flies over the big strawboard plant, showing that it is playing its role in Uncle Sam's war effort.

MAY RETAINS POST

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 5—Rep. Andrew May, Democrat and chairman of the house military affairs committee, today won reelection in a close race with Dr. E. E. Gabbard, Republican.

Reading the war news makes a person sympathize with the remark of our own Lieutenant-General Liggett, Pershing's right-hand man: "War is the most muddled of human industries."

been returned to the next Congress.

200 GOP Seats

Where the Republicans in the last four years have had only 150 to 165 seats, they will now have more than 200. How effective the increase in the ranks of the conservatives will be next year can best be judged by the fact that for the last four years, the administration leadership has rarely escaped a stiff fight on any controversial issue. Defeats have been suffered numerous times, while escapes by the margin of only a few votes have been many.

Conservatives, heretofore always pressed to muster more than 200 votes in the house, will now be assured of that figure for a minimum with a clear majority of 218 easily in sight on most any legislation they might set out to block.

Rayburn May Remain

While it is numerically possible that the Democrats might have trouble reelecting Speaker Rayburn should enough of them desert openly on a speakership vote, it is considered improbable. Rayburn is extremely popular with Democrats and Republicans alike, only recently drawing a rare tribute when House Republican Leader Joseph Martin Jr., called him "one of the great Americans of this day."

The House, always colorful in its makeup, will not fall short of the mark next year. The lower branch will have one less woman among its membership, but will still list seven.

CONFESSIONS TO BE CONTESTED

ney Paul A. F. Warnholtz to enter a fiery objection that the documents were made under duress.

To Hear Argument

And again, for the fifth time in two days, the jury will be asked to leave the courtroom while Judge William J. Campbell hears arguments of opposing counsel. This procedure is expected with the presentation of each statement.

The government first trained its big guns on the Wergins yesterday when Lorraine Demmler, gifted in a state of excitement rare among witnesses, turned an accusing finger at the two stocky, stolid defendants.

The tall, attractive witness, who formerly lived with the Wergins, was able to recall in the minutest detail—to the point of which brand of cigarettes was smoked when—every allegedly incriminating incident that occurred at their home.

Wergins Fidgety

She told how fidgety the Wergins were about leaving letters from their son, Wolfgang, lying about. Wolfgang, while traveling in 1941 with Herbert Haupt from the United States to Germany, definitely told his mother his goal was Nazi-land, the witness said.

One letter from Tokyo stated Wolfgang would have a "chance to see me." Mrs. Wergin explained to Miss Demmler that "me" meant Grandma, who was in Germany, and this was her son's cautious way of designating his ultimate stamping ground, according to the witness.

Miss Demmler said Mrs. Wergin once told her: "Maybe they'll find out we knew the boys were in Germany, but I got a good story and I won't change it, even if I go to jail for life."

Haupt Returns Home

Slowly climbing over particulars, Miss Demmler came to the important part of her story: on June 21 last, four days after he landed on a Florida beach from a German submarine, Herbert Haupt spent an evening of hushed conferences with his parents and the Wergins in the Wergin home.

Miss Demmler thought it strange, that since she never had met him before, Herbert was introduced to her merely as a "friend of the family," not by name.

Earlier in the session, Froehling suffered his saddest day when the court admitted into evidence his statement to the FBI on July 3. This Warnholtz described, in fighting its admission, as "constituting a confession."

Read to the jury, the statement quoted Froehling as admitting he guessed what Haupt's real mission was, and that he allowed the young saboteur to deposit in his home $9,950 given to the agents by the German government for expenses in their intended campaign of destruction against American war industries, particularly aluminum plants.

LOCAL WOMAN'S SISTER SEEN AS BEST REPORTER

Mrs. Clinton Strawser, 119 Hayward avenue, has received news that her sister, Mrs. Juel Reed Cover, an employee of the editorial staff of the Port Clinton, O., Herald, has won a triple honor at the Ohio Newspaper Women's association for the best straight news story, best human interest story and best feature story.

Mrs. Cover's selection as "outstanding Ohio woman newspaper reporter for 1942" marks the first time the honor has gone to a writer outside a metropolitan center.

Mrs. Cover's work on a story concerning death of a Port Clinton man by lung paralysis, a general story on coming of the war to Port Clinton and a feature on the adventure of a Port Clinton youth whose ship was sent down by a submarine won her statewide honors.

The honor awards were presented at a convention in Cincinnati.

LEGIONNAIRES TO ATTEND MEET AT PORTSMOUTH

Delegation of Circleville American Legionnaires and auxiliary members will go to Portsmouth Sunday to attend a joint meeting of Legion posts and auxiliaries of the Seventh Ohio District. Gus Boop of Portsmouth, district commander, will be in charge of the meeting, with Mrs. Frank Walter, auxiliary president, conducting the meeting for leaders of the women's organization.

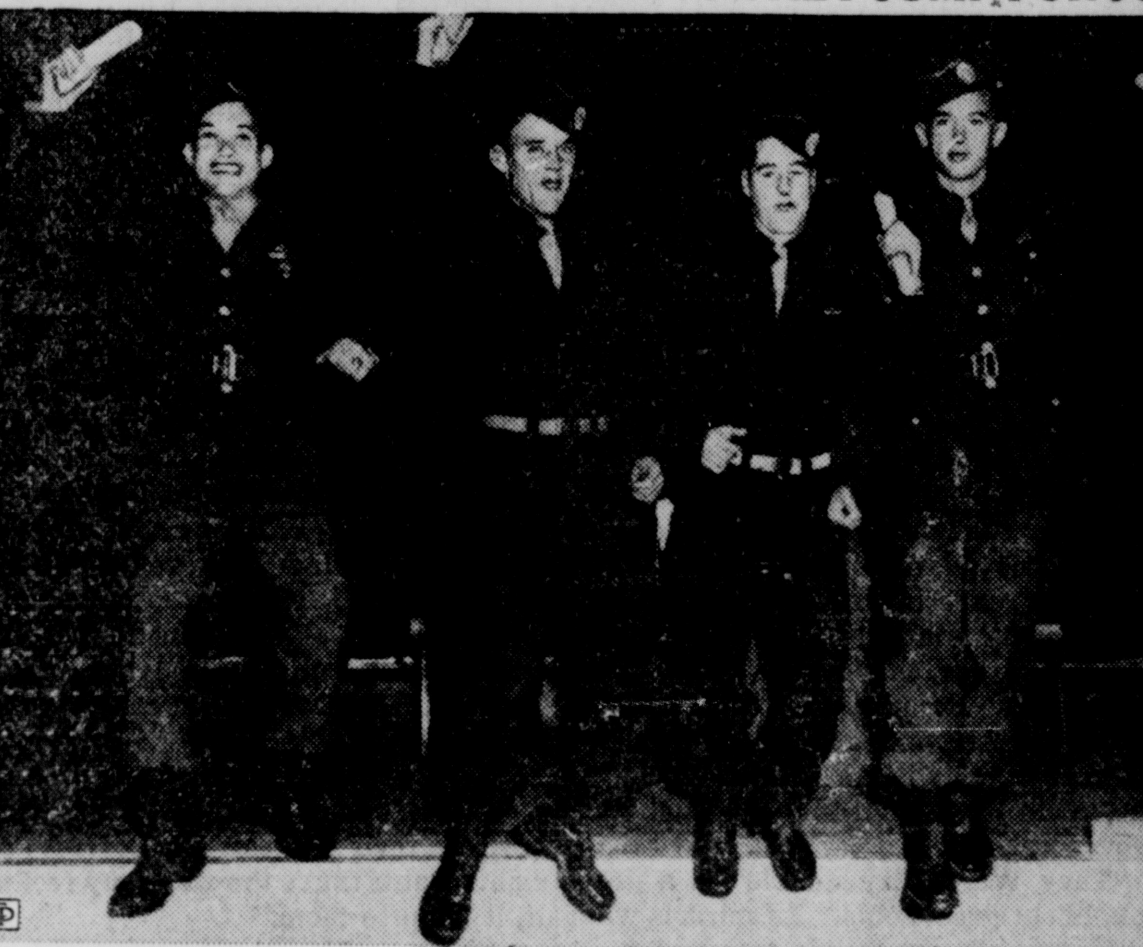

Separate conferences will be conducted during the morning, with a joint meeting planned in the afternoon. Representing Howard Hall post will be Mr. and Mrs. Orin Dreisbach, Mrs. B. T. Hedges, E. C. Ebert and possibly Commander Warren H. Baker.

AXIS SOLDIERS APPROACH CAIRO—UNDER GUARD

Months ago Field Marshal Erwin Rommel promised his Axis forces in North Africa that they soon would push right through to the Suez canal. Hundreds of them are getting there now, but as the vanquished, not the victors. SPEEDER FINED

Robert W. Parrett, Frankfort, was fined $10 and costs Wednesday by Squire E. T. Hedges for speeding on Route 23. Parrett was arrested by Patrolman H. G. Watson of the state highway patrol. The driver, who was operating his car at 60 miles an hour, thus forfeiting any right he might have to buy new tires, paid and was released.

MRS. FLAVE BAIRD DIES

Mrs. Walter Metzger of Wilson avenue has received word of the death Wednesday of her cousin, Mrs. Flave Baird, in Roanoke hospital, Roanoke, Virginia. Mrs. Baird was the former Edith Baer, daughter of the late John Baer of Circleville. Funeral services will be Friday afternoon in Columbus.

F. D. R. Plea May Mean Free Trade

of many strategic materials needed for the war effort.

Imports Hampered

For example, some strategic materials, including copper, cannot be imported into America in some instances unless ear-marked for a specific branch of the armed services, though they may be required by one of the war industries.

While the immediate purpose of the requested measure is intended to cut this red tape, it is admitted that in its broader import, it would give the President authority to lower trade barriers in any way he sees fit during the war.

The reduction of international economic barriers is one of the fundamental objectives of Secretary of State Cordell Hull's foreign trade policy. One of his major peace aims is a system of open trade among the United Nations, guaranteeing non-discrimination in commercial relations.

Favored By Hull

If the President receives the requested grant of authority, it could be used to aid Secretary Hull in establishing, during the war, at least, his system of free trade. If this system was firmly established among the United Nations during the world conflict, it is felt that it might be easier to retain it afterward than it would be to get Congress to agree to any general lowering of tariff barriers when the war is over.

girl, and Kerman Garale, a 14-year-old Spanish lass. They also were overawed and speechless.

The call on the children wound up another busy day for the American visitor. She visited the home field of the American Eagle Squadron, Queens college at Cambridge, a Red Cross station and a canteen of the Women's Voluntary services.

The day marked the end of a five-year-autograph quest for Private Harry Goldstein of Newark, N. J. He failed in his first effort in Washington in 1937, and was close to failure again. Mrs. Roosevelt at first demurred, saying there was no place convenient for writing. Then she relented and used his back as a table.

Then Private Alfred Forestieri of Wilmington, Del., crowded up and got himself an autograph.

ALLIED MARCH THROUGH ITALY HINTED IN ROME

London Believes Collapse Of Rommel's Army May Be Early Development

hind the comparatively shallow front.

Casualties High

While there have been no official estimates of axis casualties and losses of equipment, they were reported to be "exceptionally high."

Late this afternoon, with the British pressing steadily forward across the desert wastes, the "box-score" stood this way:

1—More than 600 enemy planes destroyed or damaged in air combats or on the ground.

2—More than 100,000 tons of axis shipping—essential to replenishment of Rommel's forces—sunk or damaged since the British offensive began only 13 days ago.

3—More than 9,000 axis prisoners—almost equivalent to a full desert division—captured, with the number mounting hourly.

4—At least 270 guns destroyed or captured and 260 German and Italian tanks reduced to wreckage.

5—General Ritter Von Stumme, commander of the German Afrika Korps and second in leadership to Rommel himself, dead.

6—Other high ranking German and Italian officers captured.

One report reaching London said that the axis had lost at least half of its effective strength in the field.

Today's communique declared that the British imperials were advancing along the whole line. Some axis strongholds remained to be cleaned out on the southern end of the line, but in the north the enemy was retreating behind a screen of tanks and anti-tank guns.

Reports from Ankara said four German divisions, withdrawn from the Russian front, had passed through Greece en route to the island of Crete, whence, it was presumed, they would be ferried to Egypt to bolster the hard-hit axis ranks.

Russians Show Power

News from Russia made it clear that troops could be ill-spared from that front, for the Soviet armies were on the offensive throughout the Volga-Caucasus area. The Russian lines held in Stalingrad and around Nalchik on the eastern slopes of the Caucasus range. On other fronts Soviet troops pressed the enemy back—northwest of Stalingrad, on the Mordok sector of the central Caucasus, and along the Black Sea coast.

The third axis partner was also reported "on the run" in New Guinea as Australian jungle fighters pressed on in the drive to push the Japanese back to the sea. Fighting was reported in the vicinity of Olvi, nine miles beyond the captured enemy base of Koda. Allied planes pounded enemy positions from Olvi to Buna, and bomber squadrons blasted Japanese bases on Timor and at Lee and Salamaua in New Guinea.

A lull appeared to have developed in the Solomons. The latest Navy communique, covering actions of Tuesday, said American Marine and Army forces on Guadalcanal island were making slight gains west of their positions guarding Henderson field.

There was no report of further activity by the Japanese forces which made a night landing east of the field, and there was some speculation in Washington that the Marines had "dealt with" this force.

MERIT AWARD GIVEN DISPLAY AT C. C. PLANT

Certificate of Merit was given a prominent position in the Container Corporation of America plant offices Thursday following presentation of the award to plant managers by Earl A. Smith, chairman of the Pickaway county War Bond committee.

been returned to the next Congress.

200 GOP Seats

Where the Republicans in the last four years have had only 150 to 165 seats, they will now have more than 200. How effective the increase in the ranks of the conservatives will be next year can best be judged by the fact that for the last four years, the administration leadership has rarely escaped a stiff fight on any controversial issue. Defeats have been suffered numerous times, while escapes by the margin of only a few votes have been many.

Conservatives, heretofore always pressed to muster more than 200 votes in the house, will now be assured of that figure for a minimum with a clear majority of 218 easily in sight on most any legislation they might set out to block.

Rayburn May Remain

While it is numerically possible that the Democrats might have trouble reflecting Speaker Rayburn should enough of them desert openly on a speakership vote, it is considered improbable. Rayburn is extremely popular with Democrats and Republicans alike, only recently drawing a rare tribute when House Republican Leader Joseph Martin Jr. called him "one of the great Americans of this day."

The House, always colorful in its makeup, will not fall short of the mark next year. The lower branch will have one less woman among its membership, but will still list seven.

ney Paul A. F. Warnholtz to enter a fiery objection that the documents were made under duress.

To Hear Argument

And again, for the fifth time in two days, the jury will be asked to leave the courtroom while Judge William J. Campbell hears arguments of opposing counsel. This procedure is expected with the presentation of each statement.

The government first trained its big guns on the Wergins yesterday when Lorraine Demmler, gifted in a state of excitement rare among witnesses, turned an accusing finger at the two stocky, stolid defendants.

The tall, attractive witness, who formerly lived with the Wergins, was able to recall in the minutest detail—to the point of which brand of cigarettes was smoked when—every allegedly incriminating incident that occurred at their home.

Wergins Fidgety

She told how fidgety the Wergins were about leaving letters from their son, Wolfgang, lying about. Wolfgang, while traveling in 1941 with Herbert Haupt from the United States to Germany, definitely told his mother his goal was Nazi-land, the witness said.

One letter from Tokyo stated Wolfgang would have a "chance to see me." Mrs. Wergin explained to Miss Demmler that "one" meant Grandma, who was in Germany, and this was her son's cautious way of designating his ultimate stamping ground, according to the witness.

Miss Demmler said Mrs. Wergin once told her: "Maybe they'll find out we knew the boys were in Germany, but I got a good story and I won't change it, even if I go to jail for life."

Haupt Returns Home

Slowly climbing over particulars, Miss Demmler came to the important part of her story: on June 21 last, four days after he landed on a Florida beach from a German submarine, Herbert Haupt spent an evening of hushed conferences with his parents and the Wergins in the Wergin home.

Miss Demmler thought it strange, that since she never had met him before, Herbert was introduced to her merely as a "friend of the family," not by name.

Earlier in the session, Froehling suffered his saddest day when the court admitted into evidence his statement to the FBI on July 3. This Warnholtz described, in fighting its admission, as "constituting a confession."

Read to the jury, the statement quoted Froehling as admitting he guessed what Haupt's real mission was, and that he allowed the young saboteur to deposit in his home $9,950 given to the agents by the German government for expenses in their intended campaign of destruction against American war industries, particularly aluminum plants.

LOCAL WOMAN'S SISTER SEEN AS BEST REPORTER

Mrs. Clinton Strawser, 119 Hayward avenue, has received news that her sister, Mrs. Juel Reed Cover, an employee of the editorial staff of the Port Clinton, O., Herald, has won a triple honor at the Ohio Newspaper Women's association for the best straight news story, best human interest story and best feature story.

Mrs. Cover's selection as "outstanding Ohio woman newspaper reporter for 1942" marks the first time the honor has gone to a writer outside a metropolitan center.

Mrs. Cover's work on a story concerning death of a Port Clinton man by lung paralysis, a general story on coming of the war to Port Clinton and a feature on the adventure of a Port Clinton youth whose ship was sent down by a submarine won her statewide honors.

The honor awards were presented at a convention in Cincinnati.

LEGIONNAIRES TO ATTEND MEET AT PORTSMOUTH

Delegation of Circleville American Legionnaires and auxiliary members will go to Portsmouth Sunday to attend a joint meeting of Legion posts and auxiliaries of the Seventh Ohio District. Gus Boop of Portsmouth, district commander, will be in charge of the meeting, with Mrs. Frank Walter, auxiliary president, conducting the meeting for leaders of the women's organization.

Separate conferences will be conducted during the morning, with a joint meeting planned in the afternoon.

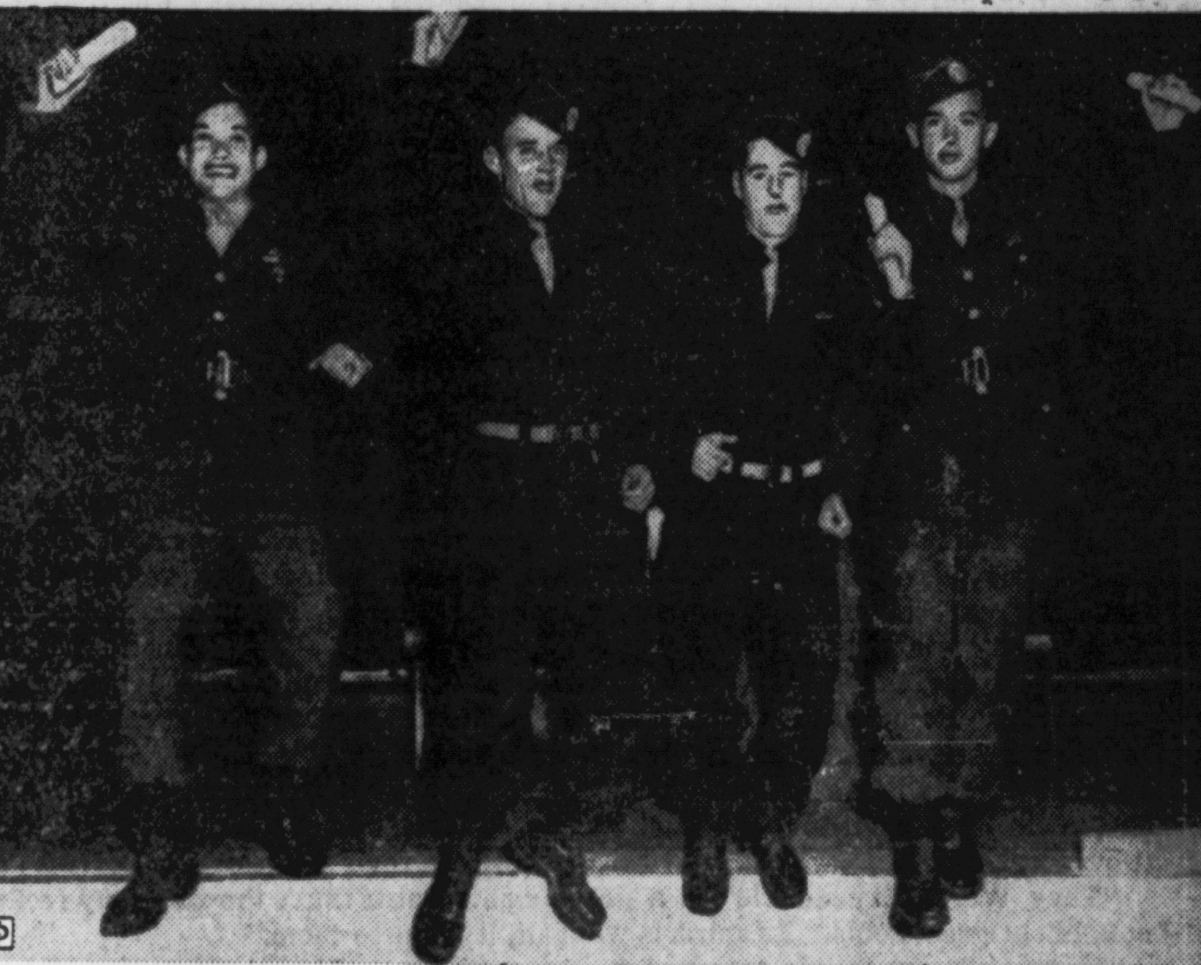

Representing Howard Hall post will be Mr. and Mrs. Orin Dreisbach, Mrs. E. T. Hedges, E. C. Ebert and possibly Commander Warren H. Baker.

NOT EXPENDABLE

IN A WAR anything can be expendable—money or gasoline or equipment or most usually men," said the young naval officer in W. L. White's recent book.

"They are expending you and that machine gun to get time. They don't expect to see either one again. They expect you to stay there and spray that road with steel until you're killed or captured, holding up the enemy for a few minutes or even a precious quarter of an hour. You know the situation—that those few minutes gained are worth the life of a man to your army. So you don't mind it until you come back here where people waste hours and days and sometimes weeks, when you've seen your friends give their lives to save minutes—"

The reader of the book knows that men, munitions, ships and planes are expendable, though perhaps he has not thought of it before in exactly those terms. But as he reads he is struck by the fact that so many Americans are not expendable. Or rather, they are twice or thrice expendable. Because they will not admit that they have been expended. Ships and men both, written off the books as gone, come back from the dead and start all over again.

"They Were Expendable" is a great book, about great souls. Its spirit is what makes America impossible to conquer.

CRASHES AND JUNK

THERE'S a man in Brooklyn, N. Y. who buys up old jalopies. He's bought ten so far and aims to run the number up to a hundred before he gets through. He smashes them with an axe so they cannot possibly be run again by the most determined and mechanically minded youngster. Then he sells them for junk and gives the money to war relief organizations.

He says the jalopies come to him because he pays a little more for the car alive and running than the junkman will pay for the junk. He's in a favor of having other people with a little ready cash do the same thing.

"We'd have the wrecks off the streets in no time, we'd keep a lot of kids out of trouble, prevent accidents and get some real steel to the war plants," he says. "When I think of the accidents that won't happen, I wonder whether that or the steel is more important. I guess they're both important."

It looks as if Joe Schwarz, mattress-maker of Brooklyn, has a real idea.

It's time now to swell out civic chests and fill the community chests.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By—
Charles F. Stewart

WASHINGTON—Critics of the croakers who have said "We can lose this war" rather noticeably refrain from naming the individual who originally dropped the remark.

He didn't do it in a tragic tone of voice, to be sure. Rather, it unquestionably was intended as a clarion cry to us to get action—more of it and a great deal faster.

Nevertheless its wording was such as to lend it to a rather pessimistic interpretation.

It also had a certain pungency that made it attract attention.

Others picked it up (it went out initially over the radio) and improved on it, reminding us that we not only can lose, but warning us that, thus far, we actually are doing so.

The first squawk, by itself, mightn't have created much excitement, but repetitions of it finally began to get the goats of believers in a policy of absolute unadulterated optimism. These latter folk have adopted lately a policy of severe paning of the gloomier group, which include several pretty prominent personalities—like Assistant Navy Secretary Ralph A. Bard, Lieut. Gen. Breton B. Somervell, Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt, and War Production Chairman Donald Nelson.

F. D. R. Says We'll Win

As outstanding a national spokesman as President Roosevelt has proclaimed the utterances of the plain element even in his own official family.

In his recent fireside chat he declared:

"We Americans and our allies are going to win. Don't let anyone tell you differently."

Among those whom we shouldn't permit to do so he didn't specifically designate Bard, Somervell, McNutt, Nelson & Co., but they've been so copiously quoted as to the emergency's developments that there was no mistaking 'em.

Yet it's to be noted that no one of 'em was the primary author of that little quintuplet, "We can lose this war."

The most they did was to echo and, maybe, emphasize it.

Now, isn't it funny that the slogan's real perpetrator isn't named by anyone?

No, it isn't, if you recall who evolved it.

It was Elmer Davis, chief of President Roosevelt's Office of War Information.

Elmer got it off in his introductory radio broadcast, immediately following his appointment.

From the very nature of his job, it wouldn't do to point him out as the perpetrator of that particular crack over the wireless.

A general or an assistant naval secretary or some ordinary civil official can legitimately say that he made a bad guess and, with apologies, get away with it.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

SEVERSKY WINS $75,000

WASHINGTON — It hasn't made headlines, but Major Alexander de Seversky, famous Russian-American air expert, has just received a $75,000 cash settlement from the Republic Aviation corp. for his part in designing certain airplanes now used by the Army.

Behind this is a story of the petty intrigue and jealousy by Army brass-hats which is bogging down the war. Major de Seversky is one of the foremost aviation specialists in the United States, but has never been popular with the Air Corps. His English is not too good. His manners are persistent. He has definitely got on the nerves of certain high Army airmen. This war has proved a lot of his ideas to be far ahead of the Army, but that seems only to have deepened the jealousy.

Until 1940, Seversky was a director of Republic Aviation. But in that year certain airmen made such strong representations to Republic about Seversky that he was dropped. Since Republic had taken over the old Seversky Aircraft Corporation, Seversky sued, and hired as attorney Alfons Landa of the prominent law firm headed by Ex-Ambassador Joseph E. Davies.

Davies has a distinguished list of clients, including some of the biggest firms in the United States. Shortly after Landa took Seversky's case, Davies received a call from Paul Moore, of Republic Aviation, expressing the hope that no member of the Davies law firm would handle the Seversky case. It was also indicated that two important clients which the Davies firm represented would withdraw their business if the Davies firm also represented Seversky.

Davies, however, stood his ground. "I can't see that there is any conflict between their interests and Seversky's," he said. "But if that's the way they feel about it, it is up to them."

Subsequently these two clients did withdraw. But Landa, of the Davies law firm, continued to represent Seversky and was about to negotiate a settlement for $100,000 when the Army stepped in again and urged Republic not to settle. As a result of the Army's last-minute intervention, the settlement was finally scaled to $75,000.

Note: Walt Disney is now producing Seversky's book, "Victory Through Air Power," and is refusing diplomatic representation about the matter from the Navy. Seversky's friends say this is one of the few times that the Army Air Corps has been able to get full cooperation from the Navy.

RATIONED VICE PRESIDENT

Vice President Henry Wallace is noted for abstinence. He does not drink or smoke, he eats in moderation. He does not even drink coffee. Now he has added another "absent" item to his bill of fare. He does not eat butter.

Wallace says, "Butter is an excellent food for children, but an adult like me, who is trying to keep his waistline down, can get along just as well without it."

Eagles and pelicans seem to have been the first air cargo carriers.

DIET AND HEALTH

Keeping Mentally Fit For War Emergencies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

KEEPING fit under any circumstances involves three somewhat separate but interrelated activities: the mind, the nutrition and the muscles. It would be hard to say which is most important; this depends on just what you are expecting your body to do, if training for an athletic contest.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Muscular hygiene is primary. Starting out on any kind of stint of work, nutrition and good muscles and circulation contribute to the balance of the mind.

In such terrific emergencies as we are living through now, I am inclined to think mental hygiene takes first place.

I do not believe public officials, newspapers, magazines, radio announcers, feature and editorial writers always realize the effect of what they are saying and announcing on ordinary minds—and that includes the majority of us. Nor especially, the effect on minds that are not quite stable.

Effect on Minds
Even the most vigorous and courageous and optimistic minds are staggered at times by what is going on around us. How must the impact of these events affect those who were never designed for great responsibility or intensive thinking.

An editorial writer or a responsible statesman has talked over his message with colleagues who are as stable, penetrating and judicious as himself. He often has not thought or has no conception of how that message will affect a less balanced personality.

I am not suggesting that the editorials or the pronouncements cease, but that many of us should not read or listen.

I see it about me all the time, and it is increasing. I know a man who operates well in a steady small job—small but necessary. He is about 50 years old, but his intellect is that of a child of 10.

He is unfortunately where he can turn on a radio all the time. He is at the war news, morning to night. And his mental equipment is such that his efficiency in his job has fallen about 75 per cent.

Put Down on War News

I don't believe anybody can stand more than one newscast a day. Nor more than one political commentator. You don't have to read all of them, you know. If this routine disturbs you, go back to Dickens and Dumas and Mark Twain and see what they said.

A neurologist in an Eastern city told me that after the bombing of Cologne his office was filled with jittery people, some of whom had not been there for years.

Give up the war news entirely if you have to. Read Clendening's column. I always soothe you to sleep. Sometimes I put you to sleep.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. L.:—What causes a toenail to drop off without injury?

Answer: Usually infection of the nailbed, often ringworm.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

CHAPTER THIRTY

MARY WAS at her desk, working at top speed with the applicant of the moment when the red-cheeked office messenger went by her. He gave her his usual friendly wink, called, "Tonight?" And Mary smilingly shook her head. It was a running gag, his asking her for a date each evening and Mary's turning him down. Mary went on checking the applicant's answers.

He was a Harvard man, whose failure to get a teaching post in philosophy had forced him into the practical and brutal world. He was filling in his answers in a Spencerian script, resentful of any assistance, yet nervously uncertain of these mundane questions.

"Any other degrees?" Mary asked, pointing to the empty space.

His pen moved across it in angry jerks. "What does it matter," he muttered, "to do ditch digging?" Mary thought, "He's like Bruce. Striking out against fate as a child slaps at the chair that bumped him."

Connie's quick step sounded as she came down the aisle to stop by Mary's desk. . . . Mary looked up so suddenly she caught the lead girl's worried gaze on her before she had the chance to hide it beneath a calm, cheerful expression. She was folding a note the messenger had brought in. She said quietly, "Mary, do you want to turn him over to Jane to finish? You're to go over to the F. B. I. office in the administration building. You know where it is?" Mary felt the blood racing to her head, throbbing in her ears. It had come. "Yes," she said faintly. "I know where it is."

The Harvard man looked up at her with puzzled resentment. Mary was amused even though her apprehension. "You'll be all right," she consoled him. "This girl will see you through." She stopped by the washroom and patted fresh powder onto her face, painted her lips a brave, flaming red. She had never in her life been called into a police station for questioning, never been under suspicion. Her knees trembling as she walked toward the administration building.

Danver answered her soft knock. She entered and crossed the office to his desk.

"Miss Dexter?"

"Yes," Mary nodded at the three F. B. I. men with Danver as he introduced them. She had seen them all from time to time on duty around the plant, exchanged greetings with them. Now, however, they looked serious, formidable to her. They were the F. B. I. greatest police system in America. And she was a suspect.

Danver watched her closely. She was a lovely little thing, he thought, with her flaming hair and her piquant face, a sensitive, honest face. A real credit to Martin's taste. Her cream-colored dress was simple and smart, with its shaggy, cream-colored coat sweater. No ornaments except the heavy rope of green seed beads around her slim throat. In her, he decided, there is only one danger—the danger of a fanatical devotion to Bruce Martin, which might goad her into action against even normal impulse of her real nature.

He began his questions in a tone of quiet reassurance. "This is merely a routine check up of the plant personnel, Miss Dexter. We don't want you to feel uneasy or alarmed."

"I'm not!" Mary interrupted him breathlessly. "I'm glad you called me in!"

The men exchanged glances of quick amusement. This was a refreshing reaction. Danver carried on with his questions. Did she know a test pilot by the name of Bruce Martin?

"Yes, I do," said Mary.

"When did you meet him?"

They watched the girl's large eyes grow dreamy, her lips curl in a tender and amused smile. "The first night I worked at Nordex," she said. She told them of the frightened, miserable girl coming into the bewildering aircraft plant, mutinous because she was being forced to give up her hopes for a career to become a factory worker. Of that first horrible evening of work that only confused her, of spilling her coffee at the cafeteria counter, of her tears—and of Bruce Martin's rescue, taking her to his table, forcing her to eat, chiding her for her determination to quit.

"Heck, I'm never on duty at the right place," one of the young officers murmured. Everyone laughed. Mary felt easier.

"When did you see him next?" Danver asked.

"The night of the blackout."

"By appointment?"

"No. By chance. I was waiting for the bus when he drove by. He took me home—and then to the hospital."

"To the hospital?"

"Yes. My roommate's car was wrecked in the blackout. Bruce stayed with me in the waiting room of the hospital till dawn."

"I see," John Danver's brow was in deep furrows of thought now. Here was a side of Bruce Martin he had never known. The fellow had some kindness, some co-operation in him then. "Will you go on, please?"

Mary told simply of the luncheon dates at the plant, of the casual rides, of the midnight swim at Bruce's beach club. And finally of their big date and of meeting Toinette Vaughn with her agent, Link Jackson, at the Brown Derby in Hollywood.

"And after that?"

Danver fought vainly to keep the color from rising to her face. "After that," she said slowly, "I didn't see him again until the day of the crack-up of the plane."

A look of understanding, that was mixed with relief passed among the men. Mary could not have cleared herself of implication in any more thorough manner, had she but known it.

Danver asked her a few more questions. Finally, he inquired casually if Bruce Martin had ever spoken to her of any organization or friends he had outside the plant. Many rumors had she heard that Bruce was linked with a sabotage ring, an international espionage group, a group of subversive-minded capitalists. She leaned forward in her chair, her large eyes shining with earnestness.

"No. Never. And I'm sure he's not interested in anything or anybody—except Toinette Vaughn—outside the plant. He's bitter—because of some personal matters—and he's headstrong and he's outspoken. But he's honest and fair and straight. I KNOW he is!" Her gaze swept the group with burning conviction.

Danver rose. "Thank you, Miss Dexter. You have been both helpful and co-operative."

Mary rose, too, and faced him eagerly. "I could be more helpful if you'd let me," she pleaded. "Please let me help you clear up the case. Not," she added falteringly, "that I believe you're incompetent. I have the greatest respect for this organization. But there might be something—there must be something I could do."

"A woman's hand?" smiled Danver.

"You could trust me," Mary cried, frightened by his light tone. "I'd take an oath of absolute secrecy! It would mean so much to me to be cleared. I'll do anything you ask me."

Danver regarded her soberly. "Very well," he said in his dry, brisk way. "If you are that serious about it, we may be able to enlist your services. Consider yourself under the oath of secrecy from now on. We will let you know when you can be of further assistance."

The men watched her go. Danver mused, with a puzzled smile. "So, Martin turned her down for Toinette Vaughn. They say 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned.' Well, if that's the kind of fury it is, it ought to be cultivated."

Today's Horoscope
Independence, self-confidence, mental keenness and the promise of success in life are the gifts of those who celebrate birthdays today. They are easy to get along with, are kind and considerate, and should have congenial married lives. They will enjoy unexpected gains of an unusual character during the next year. Secret matters are well signified.

but they should guard their speech and writings and avoid disputes. A child who is born on this date will hold advanced ideas, and in consequence be in danger of scandal and slander, especially through correspondence and travel. Some good fortune is indicated, however.

One-Minute Test Answers

1. Less than half, about 35 per cent.
2. James McNeill Whistler and Edgar Allan Poe.
3. Colorado, Wyoming and Utah.

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, November 5

THIS DAY may be memorable for the sudden advent of an unusual, unforeseen and unpredictable events which may give a surprising turn to the fortunes or present opportunities for advancing the public as well as private prestige and popularity. It may open the way for strange adventures, of a dramatic, romantic, and spectacular nature, which will have a far-reaching or radical influence on the life. The element of secrecy or subtlety also pervades the transaction, and as well there may be peculiar dangers or adverse threats to reputation or standing.

Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a surprising year, wherein sudden and strange adventures or contacts may prove thrilling, spectacular and romantic. While expansive and promising as to fulfilled ambitions, such adventures may cause radical upheavals, with far-reaching effect on the future and its destiny. Subtle or deep-seated undercurrents may be involved, calling for the utmost discrimination and vigilance lest the reputation be undermined. Also be wise and watchful in travels, change and with papers or writings of any kind.

A child born on this day should have brilliant, possibly unique or sensational talents, with strange adventures which may place it in the public eye with esteem and appreciation.

NOT EXPENDABLE

THE WAR anything can be expendable—money or gasoline or equipment or most usually men," said the young naval officer in W. L. White's recent book.

"They are expending you and that machine gun to get time. They don't expect to see either one again. They expect you to stay there and spray that road with steel until you're killed or captured, holding up the enemy for a few minutes or even a precious quarter of an hour. You know the situation—that those few minutes gained are worth the life of a man to your army. So you don't mind it until you come back here where people waste hours and days and sometimes weeks, when you've seen your friends give their lives to save minutes."

The reader of the book knows that men, munitions, ships and planes are expendable, though perhaps he has not thought of it before in exactly those terms. But as he reads he is struck by the fact that so many Americans are not expendable. Or rather, they are twice or thrice expendable. Because they will not admit that they have been expended. Ships and men both, written off the books as gone, come back from the dead and start all over again.

"They Were Expendable" is a great book, about great souls. Its spirit is what makes America impossible to conquer.

CRASHES AND JUNK

THERE'S a man in Brooklyn, N. Y. who buys up old jalopies. He's bought ten so far and aims to run the number up to a hundred before he gets through. He smashes them with an axe so they cannot possibly be run again by the most determined and mechanically minded youngster. Then he sells them for junk and gives the money to war relief organizations.

He says the jalopies come to him because he pays a little more for the car alive and running than the junkman will pay for the junk. He's in a favor of having other people with a little ready cash do the same thing.

"We'd have the wrecks off the streets in no time, we'd keep a lot of kids out of trouble, prevent accidents and get some real steel to the war plants," he says. "When I think of the accidents that won't happen, I wonder whether that or the steel is more important. I guess they're both important."

It looks as if Joe Schwarz, mattress-maker of Brooklyn, has a real idea.

It's time now to swell out civic chests and fill the community chests.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

WASHINGTON—Critics of the croakers who have said "We can lose this war" rather noticeably refrain from naming the individual who originally dropped the remark.

He didn't do it in a tragic tone of voice, to be sure. Rather, it unquestionably was intended as a clamor cry to us to get action—more of it and a great deal faster. Nevertheless its wording was such as to lend it to a rather pessimistic interpretation.

It also had a certain pungency that made it attract attention. Others picked it up (it went out initially over the radio) and improved on it, reminding us that we not only can lose, but warning us that, thus far, we actually are doing so.

The first squawk, by itself, might have created much excitement, but repetitions of it finally began to get the goats of believers in a policy of absolutely unadulterated optimism. These latter folk have adopted lately a policy of severe panicking of the gloomier group, which include several pretty prominent personages—like Assistant Navy Secretary Ralph A. Bard, Lieut. Gen. Breton B. Somervell, Manpower Commissioner Paul V. McNutt, and War Production Chairman Donald Nelson.

F. D. R. Says We'll Win

As outstanding a national spokesman as President Roosevelt has pooh-poohed the utterances of the glum element even in his own official family.

In his recent fireside chat he declared:

"We Americans and our allies are going to win. Don't let anyone tell you differently."

Among those whom we shouldn't permit to do so he didn't specifically designate Bard, Somervell, McNutt, Nelson & Co., but they've been so copiously quoted as to the emergency's developments that there was no mistaking 'em.

Yet it's to be noted that no one of 'em was the primary author of that little quintuplet, "We can lose this war."

The most they did was to echo and, maybe, emphasize it.

Now, isn't it funny that the slogan's real perpetrator isn't named by anyone?

No, it isn't, if you recall who evolved it.

It was Elmer Davis, chief of President Roosevelt's Office of War Information.

Elmer got it off in his introductory radio broadcast, immediately following his appointment.

From the very nature of his job it wouldn't do to point him out as the perpetrator of that particular crack over the wireles.

A general or an assistant naval secretary or some ordinary civil official can legitimately say that he made a bad guess and, with apologies, get away with it.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

SEVERSKY WINS $75,000

WASHINGTON—It hasn't made headlines, but Major Alexander de Seversky, famous Russian-American air expert, has just received a $75,000 cash settlement from the Republic Aviation corp. for his part in designing certain airplanes now used by the Army.

Behind this is a story of the petty intrigue and jealousy by Army brass-hats which is bogging down the war. Major de Seversky is one of the foremost aviation specialists in the United States, but has never been popular with the Air Corps. His English is not too good. His manners are persistent. He has definitely got on the nerves of certain high Army airmen. This war has proved a lot of his ideas to be far ahead of the Army, but that seems only to have deepened the jealousy.

Until 1940, Seversky was a director of Republic Aviation. But in that year certain airmen made such strong representations to Republic about Seversky that he was dropped. Since Republic had taken over the old Seversky Aircraft Corporation, Seversky sued, and hired as attorney Alfons Landa of the prominent law firm headed by Ex-Ambassador Joseph E. Davies.

Davies has a distinguished list of clients, including some of the biggest firms in the United States. Shortly after Landa took Seversky's case, Davies received a call from Paul Moore, of Republic Aviation, expressing the hope that no member of the Davies law firm would handle the Seversky case. It was also indicated that two important clients which the Davies firm represented would withdraw their business if the Davies firm also represented Seversky.

Davies, however, stood his ground.

"I can't see that there is any conflict between their interests and Seversky's," he said. "But if that's the way they feel about it, it is up to them."

Subsequently these two clients did withdraw. But Landa, of the Davies law firm, continued to represent Seversky and was about to negotiate a settlement for $100,000 when the Army stepped in again and urged Republic not to settle. As a result of the Army's last-minute intervention, the settlement was finally scaled to $75,000.

Note: Walt Disney is now producing Seversky's book, "Victory Through Air Power," and is refusing diplomatic representation about the matter from the Navy. Seversky's friends say this is one of the few times that the Army Air Corps has been able to get full cooperation from the Navy.

RATIONED VICE PRESIDENT

Vice President Henry Wallace is noted for abstinence. He does not drink or smoke, he eats in moderation. He does not even drink coffee. Now he has added another "absent" item to his bill of fare. He does not eat butter.

Wallace says, "Butter is an excellent food for children, but an adult like me, who is trying to keep his waistline down, can get along just as well without it."

Eagles and pelicans seem to have been the first air cargo carriers.

DIET AND HEALTH

Keeping Mentally Fit For War Emergencies

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

KEEPING fit under any circumstances involves three somewhat separate but interrelated activities: the mind, the nutrition and the muscles. It would be hard to say which is most important; this depends on just what you are expecting your body to do. If training for an athletic contest,

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

muscular hygiene is primary. Starting out on any kind of stint of work, nutrition and good muscles and circulation contribute to the balance of the mind.

In such terrific emergencies as we are living through now, I am inclined to think mental hygiene takes first place.

I do not believe public officials, newspapers, magazines, radio announcers, feature and editorial writers always realize the effect of what they are saying and announcing on ordinary minds—and that includes the majority of us. Nor especially, the effect on minds that are not quite stable.

Effect on Minds

Even the most vigorous and courageous and optimistic minds are staggered at times by what is going on around us. How must the impact of these events affect those who were never designed for great responsibility or intense thinking.

An editorial writer or a responsible statesman has talked over his message with colleagues who are as stable, penetrating and judicial as himself. He often has not thought or has no conception of how that message will affect a less balanced personality.

I am not suggesting that the editorials or the pronouncements cease, but that many of us should not read or listen.

I see it about me all the time, and it is increasing. I know a man who operates well in a steady small job—small but necessary. He is about 50 years old, but his intellect is that of a child of 10.

He is unfortunately where he can turn on a radio all the time. He is at the war news, morning to night. And his mental equipment is such that his efficiency in his job has fallen about 75 per cent.

Cut Down on War News

I don't believe anybody can stand more than one newscast a day. Nor more than one political commentator. You don't have to read all of them, you know. If this routine disturbs you, go back to Dickens and Dumas and Mark Twain and see what they said.

A neurologist in an Eastern city told me that after the bombing of Cologne his office was filled with jittery people, some of whom had not been there for years.

Give up the war news entirely if you have to. Read Clendening's column. I always soothe you down. Sometimes I put you to sleep.

Not," she added falteringly, "that I believe you're incompetent. I have the greatest respect for this organization. But there might be something—there must be something I could do."

"A woman's hand?" smiled Danver.

"You could trust me," Mary cried, frightened by his light tone. "I'd take an oath of absolute secrecy! It would mean so much to him to be cleared. I'll do anything you ask me."

Danver regarded her soberly. "Very well," he said in his dry, brisk way. "If you are that serious about it, we may be able to enlist your services. Consider yourself under the oath of secrecy from now on. We will let you know when you can be of further assistance."

The men watched her go. Danver mused, with a puzzled smile. "So, Martin turned her down for Toinette Vaughn. They say 'Hell hath no fury like a woman scorned.' Well, if that's the kind of fury it is, it ought to be cultivated."

STARS SAY—

For Thursday, November 5

THIS DAY may be memorable for the sudden advent of an unusual, unforeseen and unpredictable events which may give a surprising turn to the fortunes or present opportunities for advancing the public as well as private prestige and popularity. It may open the way for strange adventures, of a dramatic, romantic, and spectacular nature, which will have a far-reaching or radical influence on the life. The element of secrecy or subtlety also pervades the transaction, and as well there may be peculiar dangers or adverse threats to reputation or standing.

Those whose birthday it is stand at the threshold of a surprising year, wherein sudden and strange adventures or contacts may prove thrilling, spectacular and romantic. While expansive and promising as to fulfilled ambitions, such adventures may cause radical upheavals, with far-reaching effect on the future and its destiny. Subtle or deep-seated undercurrents may be involved, calling for the utmost discrimination and vigilance lest the reputation be undermined. Also be wise and watchful in travels, change and with papers or writings of any kind.

A child born on this day should have brilliant, possibly unique or sensational talents, with strange adventures which may place it in the public eye with esteem and appreciation.

Time goes on the air over NBC at 10:30.

Mr. Price, on leave as executive news editor of the Associated Press, former head of AP's Washington bureau and veteran of the last war, should provide highly interesting listening. He follows such men as Wendell Willkie, Attorney General Francis Biddle, Joseph Curran, Gen. Lewis H. Brereton and other spokesmen before the March of Time microphone.

March of Time also will present an up-to-the-minute analysis of this week's elections, and the program will of course provide latest eyewitness reports on the war from Time and Life's worldwide staff of correspondents.

With such hits as "A Cranky Old Yank," "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" and "Squaws Along the Yukon" already to its credit, March of Time will continue its presentation of musical candidates for the rank of America's No. 1 war song. Don Voorhes again will be directing the March of Time symphonic orchestra, with Westbrook Van Voorhis as commentator.

FIELDS VS. MCCARTHY
Charlie McCarthy is plenty mad at Edgar Bergen, and all because the latter invited Comedian W. C. Fields to put in a guest appearance Sunday, November 8, at 8 p. m. over NBC.

The feud between Charlie and Fields, which began some years back, slumbers on for most part, except when chance meetings of the two cause it to flare up with all of the old intensity.

BOB BURNS
A hero of the last war dubbed a "town clown" by his neighbors because they are annoyed by his persistent efforts to interest them in salvage drives, rationing and War Bonds will be Bob Burns' "Arkansas Traveler" subject on his CBS broadcast, Wednesday, November 11 at 9 p. m., EWT. It's a stirring story in which interested citizens suddenly and dramatically have the entire war effort brought home to them by the town clown's accidental death.

COMPOSITION BOOKED
Meredith Willson's romantic composition, "And Still the Volga Flows," is being published this week by a group of New York music publishers—one of the few instances on record of cooperative effort on the part of the men who put out the music. Gross returns from the publication will be turned over to the Russia War Relief, with Willson and the publishers absorbing the costs of the job. It is their tribute to Soviet courage.

BORGE ON ROAD
Victor Borge, Bing Crosby's Danish comedian, may go on the road in a long series of Army camp dates, returning to Hollywood each Thursday for his "Music Hall" program.

ASHVILLE

The one mill levy voted at Tuesday's election for school purposes won in a majority of 138. For the levy, west precinct, 74, against 49; for levy, east precinct, 141, against 41; Gray Station, for levy, 15, against 2.

At the Harrison township Gray Station precinct Tuesday, there were 275 votes cast, about one half of the normal vote. Candidate vote: Bricker 166, McSweeney 109; for Congress, Brehm, 143, Claypool, 118; for representative, Louis 155, Welch 103; commissioner, Brown 146, Penn 128; auditor, Short 162, Yates 101.

In the local precincts, East and West, 246 and 200 respectively, votes were recorded with the same story as all over, Republican. The Allen O. Myers "Rascals" that he used to turn out are this time, Democrats.

Good Old Madison, as usual, came through Democratic, polling some 100 votes. If "Old Sol" shines out as brightly as he did yesterday, may make the rounds up there and along with that tally sheet posted on the township house, will inspect the new State Run bridge. And maybe butt around for some of those old chicken bones left there in Madison band days when roosts were common affairs and much enjoyed.

That Extra Something!

...You can spot it every time

IN making a bull's-eye or making a soft drink there are no short cuts to "know-how". That's the explanation of why so much satisfaction is packed into the pause that refreshes with ice-cold Coca-Cola. Fifty-seven years of knowing how to blend Nature's choicest ingredients explain the different kind of refreshment you get in Coca-Cola.

A finished art in its making creates its original taste. You've never found this delicious taste in anything else except in Coca-Cola itself. The same skill guarantees the unique quality you expect in every drop of this best-liked soft drink on Earth.

Note how Coca-Cola goes beyond merely quenching your thirst to leave a delightful after-sense of refreshment. Here's energy that you can really feel. Be sure you get the real thing. There's no comparison. Call for ice-cold Coca-Cola by its full name or by its familiar abbreviation—Coke. The best is always the better buy.

Outdoor action calls for a refreshing indoor reaction. It calls for ice-cold Coca-Cola. It's only a little thing, but the big things it does to please people make it the best-liked soft drink on Earth.

Wartime limits the supply of Coca-Cola. Those times when you cannot get it, remember: Coke, being first choice, sells out first. Ask for it each time. No matter how short the supply, the quality of Coca-Cola carries on.

PRICE TO APPEAR
Answering wide-spread criticism of the government's handling of war news, Byron Price, director of the office of censorship, will appear Thursday on the March of Time to describe how his bureau functions and explain why he often has to blunder in news stories that appear innocuous. Presenting Mr. Price as the latest in its outstanding parade of "people who make the news," the March of

Time goes on the air over NBC at 10:30.

Mr. Price, on leave as executive news editor of the Associated Press, former head of AP's Washington bureau and veteran of the last war, should provide highly interesting listening. He follows such men as Wendell Willkie, Attorney General Francis Biddle, Joseph Curran, Gen. Lewis H. Brereton and other spokesmen before the March of Time microphone.

March of Time also will present an up-to-the-minute analysis of this week's elections, and the program will of course provide latest eyewitness reports on the war from Time and Life's worldwide staff of correspondents.

With such hits as "A Cranky Old Yank," "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" and "Squaws Along the Yukon" already to its credit, March of Time will continue its presentation of musical candidates for the rank of America's No. 1 war song. Don Voorhes again will be directing the March of Time symphonic orchestra, with Westbrook Van Voorhis as commentator.

FIELDS VS. MCCARTHY
Charlie McCarthy is plenty mad at Edgar Bergen, and all because the latter invited Comedian W. C. Fields to put in a guest appearance Sunday, November 8, at 8 p. m. over NBC.

The feud between Charlie and Fields, which began some years back, slumbers on for most part, except when chance meetings of the two cause it to flare up with all of the old intensity.

BOB BURNS
A hero of the last war dubbed a "town clown" by his neighbors because they are annoyed by his persistent efforts to interest them in salvage drives, rationing and War Bonds will be Bob Burns' "Arkansas Traveler" subject on his CBS broadcast, Wednesday, November 11 at 9 p. m., EWT. It's a stirring story in which disinterested citizens suddenly and dramatically have the entire war effort brought home to them by the town clown's accidental death.

COMPOSITION BOOKED
Meredith Willson's romantic composition, "And Still the Volga Flows," is being published this week by a group of New York music publishers—one of the few instances on record of cooperative effort on the part of the men who put out the music. Gross returns from the publication will be turned over to the Russia War Relief, with Willson and the publishers absorbing the costs of the job. It is their tribute to Soviet courage.

BORGE ON ROAD
Victor Borge, Bing Crosby's Danish comedian, may go on the road in a long series of Army camp dates, returning to Hollywood each Thursday for his "Music Hall" program.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Doan returned Wednesday to Portsmouth after visiting overnight with Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Lutz of East Main street. They were enroute home from Toledo where they had visited relatives.

Mrs. Charles Hay and Mrs. Lida Brinker of near Ashville were Wednesday shopping visitors in Circleville.

Mrs. Hugh Solt of Walnut township was a Circleville shopping visitor Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Anderson of near Williamsport were Wednesday business visitors in Circleville.

Mrs. Harry Sark and daughter of Ashville spent Wednesday in Circleville with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Reid, of East Main street.

Charles Rush of Washington, N. J., who has been visiting the Misses Viola and Daisy Woolver of Watt street and other Circleville relatives for several weeks, will return home Friday.

Personal
Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Shasteen of Elm avenue have returned to their home after spending a few days with their sons-in-law and daughters, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Glick and son, Ray, of Fosteria and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Leeper and son, Michael, of Gahanna.

Mrs. Don J. White of South Scioto street, Miss Leona J. Hall of Chillicothe and Verle Cassidy of Cincinnati have returned home after spending a few days in Indianapolis, Ind., where they visited the Cadle Tabernacle.

Mrs. Finley Jones of East Union street went to Marion Wednesday to visit over the week end with Mr. Jones who is engaged in Defense work in that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarke Smith and son, Dale, of Williamsport and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Newton, Miss Emogene Newton and Kenneth Newton of near Circleville were recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Brown and Miss Nellie Brown of Lancaster. The Brown family formerly resided near Circleville.

Time goes on the air over NBC at 10:30.

ASHVILLE

The one mill levy voted at Tuesday's election for school purposes won in a majority of 138. For the levy, west precinct, 74, against 49; for levy, east precinct, 141, against 41; Gray Station, for levy, 15, against 2.

At the Harrison township Gray Station precinct Tuesday, there were 275 votes cast, about one half of the normal vote. Candidate vote: Bricker 166, McSweeney 109; for Congress, Brehm, 143, Claypool, 118; for representative, Louis 155, Welch 103; commissioner, Brown 146, Penn 126; auditor, Short 162, Yates 101.

In the local precincts, East and West, 246 and 200 respectively, votes were recorded with the same story as all over, Republican. The Allen O. Myers "rascals" that he used to turn out are this time, Democrats.

Good Old Ashville, as usual, came through Democratic, polling some 100 votes. If "Old Sol" shines out as brightly as he did yesterday, may make the rounds up there and along with that tally sheet posted on the township house, will inspect the new State Run bridge. And maybe bunt around for some of those old chicken bones left there in Madison band days when roasts were common affairs and much enjoyed.

Dr. G. R. Gardner and wife have returned from Fort Benjamin Harrison where they spent several days visiting with their son George who is in camp there.

Village council in session Monday night paid bills amounting to $230.29. Mayor Hines thought that one hundred dollars and costs would be about the right amount to assess one Estle Costlow for driving his auto while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Costs suspended. Not having the amount of change handy to settle with the mayor, Deputy Marshal Cecil Scott who made the arrest continued on the job and landed the prisoner in the county jail.

Charles W. Koch, wife and son have removed from the William S. Plum farm, known as the Markley place, to Jefferson avenue, West side.

Bert Isen, for the last month, has been an employee of the Ashville Grain company. He was one of the helpers on the construction of the two, cement, grain silos recently built by the grain company.

Details for Gasoline Rationing Registration Outlined By OPA

THREE DAYS TO BE REQUIRED TO SIGN AUTOISTS

School Teachers Will Fill Important Role In Task; Hours Established

VOLUNTEERS TO CONFER

Persons Having More Than Five Tires Denied Right To Purchase Fuel

Registration of all motorists for basic gasoline rationing books is moving nearer, and school authorities of city and county are starting to make preparations for the important sign up which will be conducted November 12, 13 and 14. Hours for the registration were established as 4 p. m. to 9 p. m.

Every passenger car owner is entitled to an "A" type gasoline rationing card.

School authorities are calling their teaching staffs together to receive instructions concerning their individual duties. All rural superintendents attended a meeting in the courthouse this week when L. R. Wood of the state OPA office outlined every detail of the registration.

As registration dates move nearer, rationing officials point to the need for volunteers to handle some of the work. A meeting is being called in the Pickaway county courthouse at 7:30 p. m. Thursday of persons who will give some of their time to the registration effort. Applications for all other books in addition to the basic "A" book will be issued at the various schools for distribution to consumers at the time of their basic registration. Consumers will then present their "A" type book and application for other types of books to the supplementary ration office which will be located in Memorial Hall. This office will be open November 16 through November 21.

Persons who appear at the volunteer meeting this evening will be assigned to the supplemental office, working at various times during the registration period.

Applications for "A" book must be filled in by consumers as follows: name, address, license number, state of registration, model, make, body type and serial number of each tire. If more than five tires are shown no gasoline ration book can be given. In case of excess tires the consumer must then turn in tire or tires to the Railway Express company and present receipt for them to obtain his book at a later date from the local ration office.

The application must be signed by the owner of the car and accompanied by the certificate of registration card.

The registrar will then fill in consumer's ration book serial number, date of issue and address. At this time he will record the type of book issued, the serial number and the date of issue on the back of the consumer's certificate of registration.

On the back of the application registrar will record type of book issued, date of issue and address, on the lower half of sheet he will record the ration board number (65-1) address, registrar's name, serial number of tires, the registered persons name, address and description of passenger car.

Registrar will then file the top half of application and present the lower half to the consumer with a windshield sticker bearing the type of book given and the type "A" ration book.

In cases where car is registered in man and wife's name both must sign.

In case the owner of car is in armed service a wife or parent may sign the owner's name. In all cases the name of applicant must be the same as the name on certificate of registration.

"D" books will be given for motorcycle only.

Consumers must present coupon books to the filling station attendant who will in turn tear out coupons. Consumer will record license number and name on the back of the stamp.

Consumers may use more than one stamp at a time but will only be allowed a given number of gallons for a certain period, the coupons being void after a given date.

Because the time is short before the registration begins it would not be possible for everyone to have tires inspected, therefore inspection is not necessary to obtain the basic ration book.

Five rules to be followed in the mileage rationing program are:

1. Drive safely and carefully at all times.
2. Do not drive over 35 miles an hour.
3. Do not abuse tires, keep them properly inflated.
4. Five tires are allowed a passenger car, one for each wheel and a spare.

In case a trailer is also used if the tires are the same size as those used on the passenger car no spare will be allowed—the one spare serving both car and trailer. If sizes differ a spare may be carried for both.

In disposing of excess tires they must be sold to the Government. They cannot be sold or given to other persons or dealers.

5. Tires must be inspected every two months starting the December-January period.

Commercial vehicles will receive gasoline rations based on need as certified by the Office of Defense Transportation on certificates of war necessity.

JULIA DUNLAP GAINS DIVORCE, $1,000 VERDICT

Judge Meeker Terwilliger granted a divorce decree Wednesday afternoon to Mrs. Julia Dunlap of Columbus from Harry Dunlap of Williamsport, and ordered the defendant to pay Mrs. Dunlap $1,000 during the next 30 days.

The decree came at the conclusion of a bitterly contested trial. The hearing was held four days last week and was resumed Wednesday.

FUNERAL SERVICE HELD FOR ALBERT BURGOON

Funeral services were held Thursday in Columbus for Albert Burgoon, 45, who died Monday in St. Anthony's hospital, Columbus. Mr. Burgoon was reared in Circleville at the home of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Wolfe.

He served in World War I from Circleville in Company M, 166th infantry, and was in several major battles in France.

One brother, Ed, of Lancaster survives.

Mr. Burgoon had lived at 200 Cleveland avenue, Columbus.

WOODROW HICKS, FRANK HARRIS QUIT HOSPITAL

Woodrow Hicks of Orient and Frank Harris of Mount Sterling have been returned home from Mercy hospital, Columbus, following treatment for injuries suffered in an automobile collision at Reeb avenue and Fourth street, Columbus, earlier in the week. Hicks is suffering from a knee and hand fracture and Harris has cuts and bruises. Also hurt was Frank Webster, Toledo, whose car figured in the crash with that driven by Hicks and Harris.

CHIEF OF POLICE URGES REGISTRATION OF TIRES

Police Chief W. F. McCrady is urging Circleville motorists to have their automobile tire registration numbers recorded at the City Hall office. He pointed out that since tire serial numbers must be copied so they can be on applications to be submitted for gasoline rationing coupons that it would be an easy manner to have the number recorded at the police station. He pointed out that efforts to trace stolen tires could be made much easier if all serial numbers could be placed on file.

Registration of all motorists for basic gasoline rationing books is moving nearer, and school authorities of city and county are starting to make preparations for the important sign up which will be conducted November 12, 13 and 14. Hours for the registration were established as 4 p. m. to 9 p. m.

The registrar will then fill in consumer's ration book serial number, date of issue and address. At this time he will record the type of book issued, the serial number and the date of issue on the back of the consumer's certificate of registration.

On the back of the application registrar will record type of book issued, date of issue and address, on the lower half of sheet he will record the ration board number (55-1) address, registrar's name, serial number of tires, the registered persons name, address and description of passenger car.

Registrar will then file the top half of application and present the
